SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Theodore Roosevelt this afternoon threw the State Republican convention into an uproar and was greeted in turn by cheers and hisses when he delivered a fiery address in support of the direct primary plank of the platform reported by a majority of the Committee on Resolutions. The minority plank was beaten, 606 ro 403.

The majority primary plank was then submitted and adopted by a viva voce vote.

The entire platform was adopted and a recess declared until 5 o'clock.

Mr. Roosevelt said:

FIERY ADDRESS BY ROOSEVELT.

"Mr. Chairman, we are now at the vital moment in this convention. We are now to determine whether we are to be a party of progress or a party of the bourbon and the reactionary.

"I have heard Republicans of the West hold up as people we should avoid. In my Republicanism there is neither East nor West. I have seen primaries working in the West. They have just-had direct primaries in Wisconsin.

"Sibley of Pennsylvania will not be a congressman again and if there had not been a primary law to find him out he would have received the office.

"I ask this convention to stand behind the Governor of New York State and a majority of the Legislature in this primary fight.

"Barnes, Woodruff and Wadsworth say that if the primary fight is begun there will be a revolution. I say that it has already begun. If means that direct primaries will be introduced as speedily as possible and on the same plan as approved by Governor Hughes."

Hisses and Cheers.

Referring to the Sibley case, Colonel Roosevelt said that no money had been spent to influence direct primaries as there would have been spent in influencing a convention.

Loud cries of "No" and storms of hisses interrupted him.

"I'll give you a chance to express your dissent again," yelled the Colonel, and he repeated the statement.

"In Sibley's case," he declared, "direct primaries kept him from being a Congressman."

The Colonel here drew himself up to his full height, shook his fist and yelled:

"The minority report represents what would have been progress a quarter of a century ago.

"I ask you to-day to be loyal to the principles of the Republican party and apply those principles to what we need. I ask you to stand by these principles, because sooner or later you will have to do it. I wish to ask you to advance rather than see you run over and have to bring up in the rear. I ask you to support the Republican party and adopt the majority platform."

Colonel Roosevelt resumed his seat at 2:40 o'clock and the debate was declared closed.

Stimson for Governor.

Before the convention met it had been decided by the Progressives that former United States District Attorney Henry L. Stimson of New York should be nominated for Governor.

United States Senator Elihu Root in accepting the permanent chairmanship made a speech which many of the delegates viewed as ominous and which for the time being entirely quieted the turmoil that raged in the hall.

"The trend of public opinion in the State seems to be against the Republican party," said Senator Root, "but what of it? What difference does it make in the performance of our duty? Republicans never lose hope and we will change that sentiment and win."

Another startling declaration was made by Robert B. Conkling of New York, who warned the convention that adoption of the majority plank would sound the death knell of the Republican party in the State and be "your last chance to vote as Republicans."

"War on Graft," the Slogan.

"War on graft" is the keynote of the platform submitted by the majority of the committee on resolutions. Its leading planks follow:

"The Republicans of New York, in convention, declare relentless warfare upon official and legislative wrong doing in this State. A Republican Legislature ordered

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, DETROIT, Sept. 28.—Cleveland had her revenge on the Red Sox yesterday for all the defeats she has suffered during the year, and the battered and bruised Boston team, crippled and knocked to pieces by the last few slaughters, knew what they were up against when they went out for the third game of the series this afternoon.

An even break was all that Boston could hope for, and even with two victories out of the four, the Red Sox can hardly hope to get out of fourth position by the end of the season.

'PHONE CHANGES EQUALIZE COST'

Speaking on the new telephone rates before the Pilgrim Publicity Association at the Boston City Club to-day, Special Agent William J. Borden of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company said: "The big subscriber will no longer get his calls for half a cent each, while the small subscriber has to pay anywhere up to ten cents. The new rates will tend to equalize the burden of cost, because each subscriber will pay a uniform rate for the service he actually gets.

"The change will cost the company at least $1,000,000."

President George W. Coleman of the Pilgrim Publicity Association declared: "If public service corporations would meet the public in the same generous spirit as the telephone company many grave evils which are settling down on American life would be avoided."

Thomas J. Feeney, advertising manager for the telephone company, declared: "The best proof of a real reduction having taken place was the fact that on the first day after the new rates were published 370 subscribers called at the company's offices and had their contracts changed."

SIXTY BARRELS OF VINEGAR SEIZED

Federal officers to-day seized sixty barrels of vinegar at the wharf of the Metropolitan Steamship Company, claiming that it was adulterated with yeast, refuses, an injurious product. The shipment of vinegar was sent to a Boston firm by Fleishman Brothers of New York. A representative of this firm called on Assistant United States District Attorney Furbet to-day and stated that the firm would contest the Government's claim.

STADIUM, Sept. 28.—With one of the most formidable teams it has had in a long while, Harvard opened the football season this afternoon with the gridiron warriors from Bates College, Maine.

The Crimson coaches sent their men into the battle with a better knowledge of the new rules than any of the other large college football elevens, and a fair and practical demonstration of 1910 football was intended.

They had few trick plays up their sleeves, but were ready to give the new rules a test in straight football. They sent a better aggregation into the game than is usual in the earliest contests, mainly to try out the best men in an actual playing test of the new rules.

Bates came down from Maine with a light team, which was said to be well equipped with football knowledge and able to pull off some speedy playing. The Bates men seemed to put up a better fight than they have heretofore, getting a better chance in the speedy new game, in which more open playing was anticipated.

The Harvard team as it went into the fray this afternoon was made up about as expected, with the exception of Huntington at left guard, a surprise to those on the outside.

He is a scrappy, muscular little chap, weighing at present an even 170 pounds, but his speed, agility and knowledge of the game has been the reason for his being chosen for a tryout.

Harvard won the toss and chose to defend the west goal, receiving the kick off.

YALE FIELD, New Haven, Ct., Sept. 28.—With chaos enveloping the progress of the game, Yale and Wesleyan met here this afternoon in the opening match of the season for both teams.

Head Coach Coy of Yale said before the game that nobody could tell what might happen, and Head Coach Yorke of Wesleyan, the old Penn State quarterback, said that he felt sure that the new rules had equalled matters.

Last year Yale scored only 11 points on the Methodists and only 16 points two years ago. To-day an even closer score was predicted. The playing time decided upon was forty minutes, but the spectators seemed to think that the end of the game would take two hours to play.

Wesleyan kicked off to touch. Yale was unable to gain, and Frank Yale's 25-yard punt was fumbled by Wesleyan's right end. There was looking in the Wesleyan line and Yale was given the ball and fifteen yards in the centre.

An exchange of punts followed, and Yale took the ball at the Wesleyan 50-yard line. Daly made seven yards on a fake kick, but Yale was held at the Methodists' 15 yard line till third down when Daley tried a drop kick.

Yale Smashes the Line.

The ball was blocked, but field fell on it and Yale smashed away at the Wesleyan line again. A forward pass, Corey to Brooks, gave Yale 15 yards and the ball at the Wesleyan 3-yard line, and Field shot over with the touchdown. Captain Daley kicked goal. Score: Yale 6, Wesleyan 0.

Mitchell kicked off to Wesleyan and Captain Daly ran it back brilliantly 40 yards, adding another 30 yards by Field, the ball rolling back toward the Wesleyan goal. Field got off for 15 yards and Field skirted end for 10 on a fake forward pass.

Yale was unable to gain till the last down when Philbin punted in going over the line, Brooks falling on the ball for the touchdown. Daly kicked goal. Score: Yale 12, Wesleyan 0.

Al Mattern, the salty southpaw, faced three-fingered Brown and both started in for a pitcher's battle where Ferguson and Reulbach left off.

The Doves won the first game after nine innings of the best of baseball. It was a pitcher's battle throughout, between Reulbach and "Blondie" Ferguson, Ferguson getting the decision in the last of the ninth when Burg, the new Dove, scored on Harden's single.

GASTON SAYS HE IS BACKING NO CANDIDATE

Colonel William A. Gaston, president of the National Shawmut Bank, to-day issued a statement to which he says he is not backing anybody for the gubernatorial Democratic nomination and that he does not intend to do so. He prophesies Democratic victory in this State this fall. Tells in Colonel Gaston's statement:

"The statement in the daily papers that I am supporting any particular candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor is wholly unauthorized. I have not taken any part in any campaign in behalf of any candidate, or against any other candidate. I do not intend to.

"The fact that a number of candidates are seeking this honor from the party is a good sign. It stimulates interest, and after the convention has made its selection the party in this State will loyally support its choice, and by team play repeat in Massachusetts the story of the Democratic victory in Maine."

OLD RIVALS IN FEATURE RACE AT COLUMBUS

RACE TRACK GROUNDS, Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 28.—Racing commenced again to-day at the Driving Park after a day's postponement on account of rain, the feature being the $5,000 Buckeye stake for 2:10 trotters, in which Dudie Archdale and Joan renewed their duel of last week in the Hester stakes.

In spite of the fact that Joan was the victor on that occasion the talent stuck to the Geers mare who brought $50 in the auctions against $45 for the entire field, none of which appeared to have a chance but with the exception of Joan.

On the unfinished 2:19 trot, first division carried over from Monday, Admiral Red, winner of two heats sold for $50, the field bringing $25. In the second division of the same race Border Guard brought $25, The Exponent $15, Betsy G., $8; Billy Thrasher and Anniston $5 each, and the field $6.

Grace G. $50, the field $37 was the way they sold in the 2:13 pace, while George K. had the call over the field of 2:09 trotters which have met this year.

WAR ON GRAFT IS THE SLOGAN AT SARATOGA

es immediate and searching inquiry into all corrupt practices and this inquiry is now going forward vigorously.

"We pledge its continuance with the additional authority required until all such wrongdoing capable of exposure has been brought to light to the end that the guilty shall be punished and the innocent relieved of unjust suspicion. Dishonesty in public service is, next to treason, the most flagrant of crimes. In ridding our institutions of this cancerous growth, we know no party distinction.

"The crimes which have been committed have involved members of both parties, and the fact that some of the wrongdoers have masqueraded under the name of Republicans neither has gained nor shall gain them immunity from punishment by Republicans. Not only have they wronged the people, but they have proved themselves the worst enemies of the party. Treason, the grafter and unfaithful man in public service should be put out and kept out.

"We enthusiastically endorse the progressive and statesmanlike leadership of William H. Taft and tender our noble to the achievements of his first eighteen months as President of the United States. Each succeeding month since his inauguration has confirmed the nation in its high estimate of his greatness of character, intellectual attainments, singular courage, extraordinary patience and perseverance, broad and statesman like comprehension of public questions and unflinching and unswerving adherence to duty.

"We believe that the safeguard should surround primary elections as has been shown to be effective in preventing repeating and fraud at general elections. We therefore favor extending the same measure law to primary elections as affect general elections. Governor Hughes is due the credit of arousing the people and convincing them of the need of effectively eliminating their party officers and in recent amending their election laws. We promise legislation, which will enact those principles into law.

Strengthened Our Prestige."

"He has strengthened our prestige with foreign nations and treated with vigor and wisdom important international problems, notably our tariff relations with Germany, France and Canada. Under his administration the prosecution of those implicated in the sugar and other customs frauds have been continued and convictions obtained.

"There have been tangible and excellent enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust act, a substantial reduction of government expenses, the establishment of better business methods, which will result in greater efficiency and economy, remarkable progress in the construction of the Panama Canal and the withdrawal from private entry of over 71,000,000 acres of the public domain to preserve for public benefit valuable coal and other mineral deposits, timberland and water power sites. On his recommendation Congress has provided for a commission to investigate and report on the regulation of the issuance of stock and bonds by public service corporations engaged in interstate commerce. He has advocated a new system of appropriations for river and harbor improvements under which each item, after investigation by experts, shall be approved and carried to completion as a separate measure. This recommendation we heartily endorse.

Tariff Law Commended.

Congress is commended for its achievements and a strong tribute is paid to the courts of the country. The platform gives unqualified endorsement to the Payne Aldrich tariff law, of which it says:

"The Payne tariff law revised the average rate of all duties 11 per cent. By increasing the duties on some articles and placing led of ordinary use, making revenue, to increase on raw common food product, it formed a rational, definite basis for revision."

Advances in the cost of living, it declares, are only the local reflections of a world-wide and cannot be truthfully said to be due to the present tariff. It declares a Republican Congress necessary to provide for the requirements of the tariff board and to insure business and labor that changes in the rates will be made without disturbing conditions. The platform was adopted by the Committee on Resolutions by a vote of 22 to 15.

Roosevelt Is All Night.

Cheers greeted Colonel Roosevelt as he strolled into the convention hall at the head of his lieutenants. Practically all the delegates were then in their places and the convention was called to order. Colonel Roosevelt's clothes looked as though he had slept in them. But he had not. He had been up practically all the night and at work.

The call for 11:20 o'clock when prayer was offered by the Rev. Daniel William Martin of Saratoga.

The committee on permanent organization reported Senator Elihu Root as permanent chairman and Lafayette B. Glen as secretary.

Root Says: "Let People Rule."

In accepting the gavel Senator Root declared that he was the free choice of the committee and not the product of a preconcerted plan.

"The people should be given a chance for free and full expression of their politiwill in some form of direct primaries," he declared. He then called upon the convention to complete candidates, which he preached and to adopt a platform on which the party can confidently go before the people. He made a graceful reference to Vice-President Sherman, commended the fine nonpartisanship spirit in his action yesterday after being defeated for renomination as chairman.

"The friend of public opinion in the State seems to be against the Republican party," said Senator Root, "but what of it? What difference does it make in the performance of our duty if Republicans never lose hope, and we will change that sentiment and win."

William A. Prendergast of New York, chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, then presented the platform.

Minority Has Platform.

James W. Wadsworth, former Speaker of the Assembly, reported a platform on behalf of the minority. Wadsworth's substitute called for a uniform primary day for the nomination of party voters throughout the State; an official primary ballot; the direct electing of party committeemen, and the direct election of delegates to all conventions, thereby doing away with intermediate conventions.

"We are opposed," the minority report said, "to imposing in the Real Matthew upon all localities of whatever class a system which cannot be equally adopted by widely different communities."

J. J. Sloat Fassett then moved that the majority and minority be given one hour each to debate the direct primary reports submitted. This was carried and several thousand of the audience and many of the delegates left the hall.

BRIDGE BILL URGED BY THE MAYOR TO-DAY

Mayor Fitzgerald this afternoon requested the Finance Commission to consider the advisability of drawing up a bill for presentation to the next Legislature which will lighten the burden that Boston is compelled to pay for the establishment, maintenance and repair of bridges. He estimates that with the new bridges which it will be necessary to build within a few years, with alterations and repairs, the city will be obliged to spend nearly $7,000,000. He says:

"Considerably more than half of this sum must be paid by Boston, although the benefit is distributed over a wide area among all the cities and towns whose traffic passes to and from Boston over the bridges. These bridges are in no sense local structures. Justice, therefore, would seem to require that the other cities and towns should contribute something to the cost of the accommodations provided for them."

TAFT AND HIS CABINET IN SESSION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—To-day's Cabinet session, the last to be held during President Taft's house party, was delayed, owing to a rush of visitors.

The first of the White House callers was T. J. Dolan, general secretary-treasurer of the International Brotherhood of Steam Shovel and Dredge Men.

"The President told me," he said, "that he could be depended on to give the railroads a square deal, regardless of clamor and political influence, and furthermore, he was going to see that they got it."

Mr. Dolan conferred with President Taft relative to the proposed increase of freight rates. He said that labor organizations had reached the conclusion that the proposed increases are fair and right. The steam shovel men, he said, are interested because agitation prompts the railroads to reduce expenses and discontinue improvements. "The law and cry against railroads was right for a time," Mr. Dolan continued, "but since they are controlled by Federal laws they ought to be given a chance to do business without conflict and unfair interference."

Before the cabinet session the President greeted seventy members of the governing body of the Loyal Guard of the United States, now in annual session in this city.

Following an early breakfast President Taft received Archbishop Ireland, while the cabinet members visited their several departments. When the cabinet finally met, nearly an hour late, army estimates and the plan to put the postal savings banks in operation was taken up and discussed.

WILLARD FLIES FOR DRUG MEN AT CONVENTION

After their business session in the Boston Arena, the delegates to the United Drug Stockholders' convention sport to-day at the Riverside recreation grounds, where Aviator Charles Foster Willard gave an aerial exhibition in his Curtiss biplane. Buffet luncheon was served on the grounds at 1:30 o'clock. Water sports and field games were on the program for the afternoon.

To-night a famous New England clambake will be given in a tent, after which there will be music and dancing and a smoker for the men.

The most important business meeting of the convention will be held to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock, when the past policy of the company will be reviewed and the future policy outlined. Luncheon will be served at the laboratories at 1 o'clock and in the afternoon there will be a formal inspection of the entire factory. Sleeping guides have been secured for the out of town women. The grand wind-up comes to-morrow night with a banquet at the Arena, some very fine after-dinner speakers having been secured.

REAL GAY SPOOKS BLAMED BY WIDOW WHO IS CUT OFF

Youthful Mrs. Thompson Cites Spirit Readings in Fight for Millions.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Spooks, grave and gay; philosophical and flippant; sentimental spooks and slangy spooks and an anti-Roosevelt spook—out they popped from between the covers of the blue-bound diary that youthful Mrs. Marion A. Funk, acting as medium, transcribed in seances attended by the late Robert H. Thompson, the Brooklyn millionaire, who cut off his young wife and left all his property to his sons by his first wife, to Mrs. Funk, his granddaughter, and to "Bobby" Thompson, his grandson.

The comely widow, once the millionaire's confidential clerk, has brought suit to have the will set aside, claiming that by means of spiritualism her late husband was induced to believe his first wife strongly disapproved of his second marriage and desired to leave all his property to his children.

The eerie sensation that young Mrs. Funk, a slender figure clad in black, had created at midnight of Monday's hearing of the case before Surrogate Ketcham in Brooklyn was hardly repeated yesterday, principally because the spooks, as mostly revealed by her diary, were such a jolly set of phantoms. They were quite human. They could see and hear, feel and smell. Their only deficiency in the way of entainments apparently was that they could not taste or bite.

Messages Wrote Themselves.

Young Mrs. Funk was most active as a medium in 1907 and 1908, when she was eighteen. She began taking messages from the other world on any old scrap of paper that was at hand, but her grandfather valued their spirit messages so much that he had bought the big book. The entries in very straight, upright writing says she wrote them with her eyes shut. She couldn't exactly describe just what her sensations were when she "—, the messages. She didn't hear them; she didn't see them in her mind's eye. She wasn't quite sure that she felt them. All she did was to close her eyes and pass into the possession of the spirits as their passive agent, and behold! the messages straggled along on the paper of the big book.

The anti-Roosevelt spook had said:

"We want to come to you all, but you cannot all receive us. Only certain minds and natures can receive impressions from us, and only certain minds can influence certain people. You take a girl like Marion, for instance; she could have no control over, say President Roosevelt, because his mind is not in trend with hers. Her nature differs from his. So it is here; some natures are too practical to give themselves to this work."

"Empty Room a Good Place."

Having thus disposed of Roosevelt's chances of ever swinging a spirit convention, the spook got gay.

"Bob, you old villain," cried one through the frame of Mrs. Funk, "how are you over there?" and another chortled: "Really, dear, you would laugh if you could see the time we are having around you tonight."

Mrs. Funk then went on to explain that the "Ouija" board—a heart shaped device with a pencil in the apex and wheels at the corners on which the medium placed her hands while the pencil was moved to write by ghostly inspiration—had been a favorite instrument and musical accompaniment was a great help, too, in getting the spooks stirring.

"To get into conversation with a spirit you must first find entire quietude," explained the woman. "An empty room is a good place. I found that the middle of Robert's violin floating in from an empty room helped me. I was always frightened when the seance began. I could hardly restrain myself from running out of the room. But the strangest part of it was that as soon as I commenced to record the impressions this fear entirely disappeared. For some time I jotted down my spirit talk on loose slips of paper, but my grandfather, fearing that some might be lost, got the diary for me."

"Little Sweetheart" Barred.

Aside from the widow and the heirs and the crowd in the courtroom, little Mrs. Frank had for auditors while giving her testimony Thomas A. Edison and Walter S. Mallory, a director of the Mallory Steamship Line. They had been called by the defendants to testify that Mr. Thompson, associated with them in the Edison and Portland Cement Companies, had always been able to transact business properly.

"Do you know what a spirit looks like?" demanded Mr. Sparks, attorney for the widow.

"No."

"Then how do you explain this entry

Atty. Robert H. Thompson.

But Surrogate Ketcham resolutely shook his head.

"I will not permit her to try and explain that. When she wrote these things she was either or under the influence of a spirit. If she tried to explain the purport of these communications she would either be doing an injustice to the ghost or stating a conclusion of her own mind."

"We are all here tonight," is one of the chirpiest messages in the story. "Muzzie stands near you (Muzzie being Thompson's first wife) and mother and father stand between. James is standing by Gussie. James Linton has come to see little Marion. God bless Bob. Where is he, anyway? You know my life, old man. It was not a success. Well, I cleared the Little Mells away, anyhow."

"Oh, don't recall that message," said Mrs. Funk when asked what it all meant.

Mr. Sparks discovered a message from a spook stating that all the phantoms would be on hand to "spend a social evening."

"Did you have a sociable time that evening?" asked the lawyer.

"I wouldn't call it a sociable time. That is what the spirits said, and I suppose it illustrates their way of looking at it."

The young widow, not as youthful, however, as the little "medium," swore that at seances she attended messages were received advising Mr. Thompson against a second marriage.

Decision Is Reserved.

"I was taken to Mr. Thompson's home and surrounded with all manner of luxuries," said the witness. "There were horses and carriages and automobiles. I heard of the seances but thought little about them at the time. Then one day I saw young Robert near my husband's desk where I know the spiritual messages were, and I think he took the most important ones."

Young Robert Thompson on the stand said that a few days before his grandfather's death he took out of his desk deeds to property in California, South Dakota and other States and filed them. He didn't take any check documents.

Surrogate Ketcham, who has listened to all the spirit testimony with a humorous twist of the mouth, said when the evidence was all in:

"I am not deciding this case now. Both sides may have ten days in which to submit briefs. But I do not see that it has been proved that the spiritualistic seances influenced Thompson in making his will. I should say, rather, that these ghostly manifestations tended to deter him from marrying, and that was all."

"Bob, You Old Villain!" Cried One of them; and They Also Held Conventions.

R. I. DEMOCRATS ARE UNCERTAIN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 28.—There never was so much uncertainty connected with the makeup of a convention slate as that which prevails in the Democratic party of Rhode Island.

Although the State convention is to be held here to-morrow the Democratic State Central Committee has no list of candidates to present. Two futile meetings of the committee have been held, but there is a dearth of the kind of candidates desirable. With great prospects before it, the party leaders have been sounding tentative candidates, all of whom pleaded that they could not enter politics for business reasons.

Richard S. Comstock has declined to be considered as a gubernatorial candidate. Overtures were made to Theodore Francis Greene of this city. Mr. Greene was willing to run for Congress, but he balked at the Governorship. The committee is also having either men under consideration, but cannot divulge names because everything is up in the air.

RECOUNTS ASKED AS RESULT OF CLOSE PRIMARY FIGHTS IN BOSTON

OVERTURNS AT POLLS, ICLUDING DEFEAT OF KELIHER AND O'CONNELL.

Recount petitions in many of the senatorial and representative contests were taken out to-day, but up to noon time none had been asked in the three congressional districts. The general belief existed that the losers were contented to abide by the results shown by the first tabulation of figures.

In the Third Councillor District, "Honest" John Quinn, who was defeated by Ex-Representative Edward D. Collins by a small margin, to-day took out a petition for a recount. Other petitions were taken out by Ex-Representative Thomas J. Fay, defeated for the Democratic nomination for senator in the Seventh District by Ex-Alderman Timilty, and Representative Harry Hum, who lost the Republican nomination for senator in the Eighth District to Thomas M. Vinson by four votes.

Two ward committee fights are to be settled by recounts. One is in Ward 16, where the anti-McDonald faction will ask for a recount of the votes that show the McDonald ticket a majority. In Ward 6 the contest is so close that a recount will undoubtedly be asked for.

Mayor Is Blamed.

The defeat of Congressmen John A. Keliher and Joseph F. O'Connell, both of whom lay their overthrow to the machine of Mayor Fitzgerald, the election of unpledged delegates to the Democratic state Convention, the overwhelming victory of Dudley Cotton, Jr., over Police Commissioner O'Meara for the Republican Congressional nomination in the Eleventh District and defeats of the Republican machine in the Eleventh Congressional District and the Eighth and Ninth Suffolk Senatorial districts are the features of the results in the primaries.

William F. Murray, Mayor Fitzgerald's choice for the congressional nomination in the Ninth District, wins over Congressman Keliher by 713 votes. Keliher was aided by a fifth nomination. In the Tenth, Congressman O'Connell, opposed by the Fitzgerald machine, is put out of the running by Councilman James M. Curley by 173 votes. The only Democratic congressman to secure a renomination is Andrew J. Peters in the Eleventh District. The Fitzgerald machine took no part in the contest in this district and Peters had little trouble winning over his opponent, Fred J. Finigan. Peters had 4,006 to Finigan's 3,687 votes.

The Fitzgerald-Lomasney machine which for every contest in which it took part. Besides defeating the two Democratic congressmen the machine is credited with securing the election of unpledged delegates to the State convention. A delegation to Ward 13, favorable to James H. Vahey, was badly beaten.

Machine Victorious.

Among the Republicans the machine scores a victory in the Tenth District where J. Mitchell Galvin whips over William B. Wilcutt, and loses in the Eleventh where Commissioner O'Meara depended entirely upon the machine to carry him through. His opponent W. Dudley Cotton, Jr., had little trouble in beating him. Another defeat was administered to the Republican machine in the Eighth Suffolk Senatorial District where Representative Harry H. Hum was beaten by Representative Thomas M. Vinson, a progressive.

Pastor Jars G. O. P. Machine.

About the biggest shock to the machine was, however, in the Ninth Suffolk Senatorial District where Rev. Lyman H. Hewitt, a "dark horse," easily won over the organization candidate.

The Republican contests were tame with the exception of those in the Tenth and Eleventh Congressional Districts and in the First, Eighth and Ninth Suffolk Senatorial districts. The delegates to the state convention favor Governor Draper, the entire Republican State ticket and Sheriff Hugh H. Bishop.

The delegates to the Democratic State convention, with few exceptions, are followers of Mayor Fitzgerald, and will be ready to rally to his support for the gubernatorial nomination at the convention on October 6, if he reconsiders his withdrawal.

The delegates, it is understood, will be lined up for Congressman Foss for Governor, but if Foss cannot secure sufficient support outside Boston to win, the Mayor may be forced to accept the nomination.

The hardest warfare settled by the primaries was in the Congressional District. Councillor Murray's victory over Congressman Keliher, who was seeking a fifth term, is a hard blow at the Keliher-Donovan combination of the Democratic city machine. Mayor Fitzgerald says it is the death-knell of the Donovan wing of the machine.

Murray swept the Boston wards by a plurality of 713, and made a good showing in Wootton, which is the only other part of the district. Former Alderman Thomas J. Giblin of East Boston ran third, more than 3,444 votes behind the leader. Representative David Shaw of Ward 3, Charlestown, who counted upon the support of Martin Lomasney up in the eleventh hour, got more than 1,000 votes and was fourth man. Former Senator George F. Monahan, also of Charlestown, got 593 votes, and Jacob H. Rasch of Ward 12 also ran, receiving 153 votes.

Keliher Waged Bitter Fight.

The fight was exceedingly bitter and Congressman Keliher was confident of victory up to the time that the result was announced. He carried Ward 7, the smallest ward in the district; Ward 9, his home ward, and the two precincts of ward 12 in the district. Murray carried Wards 2, 4 and 5, Charlestown, and Wards 6 and 8 the strongholds of Fitzgerald and Lomasney. Giblin carried both East Boston wards, 1 and 2.

Congressman Peters had a rather close call, winning over former Alderman Fred A. Finigan by 319 votes. No campaign was put up against Peters until some two weeks ago, when Finigan entered the fight, after Thomas H. Dowd and Edward Sculley, who were candidates for months, had retired.

Both Congressman Peters and Cotton are recognized as strong vote-getters, and if Cotton secures the support of the Republican state and city machines, he feels confident that he can win.

Next in importance to the congressional fights throughout the city was the contest for the Democratic nomination for the Senatorial District which includes Ward 10, Ward 11, Ward 12 (Precincts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5), Ward 18, Ward 19, Ward 20, Ward 21, Ward 22, Ward 23, Ward 24, Ward 25.

Peters's majority over Finigan, 319.
Cotton's majority over O'Meara, 945.

The seat is held by Councillor William F. Murray, and the party nominee is Representative Edward D. Collins of Ward 19. Collins got the nomination by a plurality of 121 votes. His vote was 1,253. Senator John Quinn, Jr., was second; his vote was 7,229.

Contests for the Democratic nomination for the Senate were confined to four of the nine Suffolk senatorial districts, but the battles ranked a close second to the bitter warfare which characterized the contests in the three congressional districts.

Representative James A. Hatton won the nomination in the Second District, comprising Wards 2, 3, 4 and 5, and East Cambridge. Representative James F. Powers swept the Sixth, the South Boston district, defeating Senator Patrick Henry O'Connor by more than two to one. Former Alderman James P. Timilty of Ward 18 won handily over former Representative Thomas J. Fay in the Seventh District, comprising Wards 18, 19 and 22, and Martin F. F. Curley ran away from Robert P. Clarkson in the Eighth District.

Easy Win For Hatton.

Senators Joseph P. Lomasney of the Third District and James H. Doyle of the Fourth District were renominated without opposition. In the First District Edward J. Granger was unopposed for the nomination, as was Michael J. Murray in the Ninth District. No Democratic candidate sought a nomination in the Fifth District, which is strongly Republican, and represented by George Hobbs Tuttle, now.

There were six candidates for the senatorial nomination in the Second District. Hatton throughout the entire campaign was regarded as the strongest candidate, and the attempt to defeat him by placing James H. Hanten of East Boston in the field to confuse the voters was unsuccessful. Although Hanten's name was ahead of Hatton's on the ballot, the former received but 492 in the Boston wards against 2,366 for Hatton.

The result in the Sixth Senatorial District, Wards 13, 14, 15 and 16, was no surprise to those who watched the bitter warfare waged in that district. Representative Powers swept the three South Boston wards and lost ward 16 by a small margin. Powers' strongest opponent was Senator O'Connor, who received only 2,229 votes against 4,850 for Powers. Representative William H. O'Brien of ward 16 was an "also ran," he got but 1,808 votes throughout the entire district, less than 500 more than Powers received in the district alone in the district.

It was a battle royal in the Seventh District, with former Alderman Timilty winning in a four-cornered fight. Leader Fay, the anti-Timilty candidate, ran second, with James W. Gibbons third and Florence J. Driscoll fourth. Timilty is the Fitzgerald-Lomasney representative in that section of the city, and will succeed Senator John J. Butler at the State House this coming year.

Ham Asks Recount.

The fight in the Eighth District was scarcely more than a tilt between Martin F. F. Curley and Robert P. Clarkson, who was labelled as a "reorganization" candidate. Curley's vote was 1629 to 1481 for Clarkson, but as the district is strongly Republican, Curley will not have an opportunity of representing his district at the State House next year.

All interest in the senatorial fights among the Republicans was centred in the battle in the Eighth District, in which Thomas M. Vinson, the anti-machine candidate, won the senatorial nomination over Representative Harry H. Hum, brother of Former Assistant United States District Attorney Sol Hum, chairman of the Ward and Republican Committee. Vinson carried Ward 20, Hum's strong ward, against him, and Hum carried Ward 21 by six votes. Vinson's plurality was only five votes, and Hum will petition for a recount.

There were fights for the Democratic State Committee in the Seventh and Eighth Districts. Peter Hobin won out over Ambrose Woods of Ward 19 in the Seventh District, while Andrew B. Kelley, the retiring leader of the anti-O'Connell Red Devil Democracy in Ward 20, defeated Charles F. Riordan by nearly 400 votes.

GOVERNOR HASKELL'S TRIAL IS POSTPONED

MCALESTER, Okla., Sept. 28.—The trial of Governor Haskell and others in the Muskogee town lot case was adjourned to 9 o'clock to-morrow to give the government counsel time to confer as to whether there is evidence enough to ask for a continuation of the case.

ALL CANDIDATES CLAIM DELEGATES

Although few of the delegates to the State Democratic State Convention are actually pledged, the various candidates to-day are claiming that in many cases the delegations have indicated where their support will be thrown at the convention. In some cases such support is acknowledged. For instance the delegates from Watertown, James H. Vahey's home are known to be for him first, last and all the time. Vahey also claims a majority of the delegates elected in Lawrence, Brockton, Waltham, and Newburyport.

Charles F. Hamlin's backers claim that fifteen of the Springfield delegation will support their candidate. Fifteen claim at least four of the delegation on the first ballot. Hamlin claims one of the New Bedford delegation and the entire eighteen in New Bedford. Hamlin probably gets one Gloucester delegate, probably four in Melrose and possibly five in Wakefield. One delegate in Medford will vote for Hamlin. Hingham gives Hamlin one and the seven unpledged delegates in Milford will probably favor the same man.

The Foss forces are claiming one of the Newburyport delegation, twenty-nine delegates in Lowell, seven in Fitchburg, and a majority of the Cape delegation. Hamlin also claims the Cape delegates. Foss will probably get most of the Lynn delegation. It is believed that the Salem delegation, numbering twelve, will also be favorable to Foss.

The lack of interest in the primaries outside the big contests in Boston was indicated by the small vote cast. But 1,000 were cast in Watertown, where Vahey lives, and but twenty-three Democrats voted in Brookline.

Chief interest outside Boston centred in the fight between Harry F. Pierce of Leominster and William H. Wilder of Gardner for the nomination in the Fourth Congressional District. Returns to-day leave the result in doubt. Waltham gives Pierce 19 delegates, 13 of whom favor Pierce.

The result in the Second Congressional District is also in doubt. Late returns indicate that Springfield favors Congressman Gillett, that Springfield favors William G. McKechnie over Samuel Bowles, Jr. Bowles has secured some delegates in the towns and will fight the battle out in the convention.

'MAYOR'S TREACHERY CAUSED MY DEFEAT DECLARES O'CONNELL

Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell made the following statement regarding his defeat for renomination:

"My defeat is due to the despicable treachery of Mayor Fitzgerald, who throughout his campaign, and for several months prior to the beginning of the campaign, placed every obstacle in my path, placed every obstacle in my path, practically all the city employes who took to the Mayor's office for assistance in the selection of candidates opposed me.

"Mayor Fitzgerald violated a solemn pledge made in the presence of Martin M. Lomasney at the Hendricks Club prior to the opening of the last municipal campaign, by giving Councillor Curley aid openly, publicly and to the utmost of his influence, support and encouragement against any and all other candidates, no matter how many might be in the fight. The most important part played by myself and my friends in the municipal campaign emphasized the detestable ingratitude and double dealing of Mayor Fitzgerald.

BRIGGS WINNER OVER HUDSON

Alton E. Briggs was the Republican nomination for the Board of Control of Chelsea in yesterday's election, in one of the hardest fights ever seen in that city. His opponent was David M. Hudson, former mayor. Briggs received 1,470 and Hudson 1,277. The battle for the Republican nomination in the first district for Senator was a three cornered affair, William M. Robinson and Edward B. Newton were opposing candidates, Robinson winning by a vote of 1791 to 875 for Newton. Dr. Edward J. Grainger is the Democratic candidate for Senator. The school committee nominees are Dr. Edward S. Johnson, indorsed by the Republicans and James H. Molony, who was nominated by both Republican and Democratic parties. They are each at present members of the school committee.

PEORIA POLICE GET A CAPSALIS CLEW

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., Sept. 28.—Nicholas Capsalis, the young Greek who is charged with having slain his aunt, Maritza Capsalitz, is believed to be in hiding in Peoria, Ill. To-day Marshall Andrews of the local police received a telegram from the North Dakota police in Capsalis was wanted on a charge of murder. Another later telegram stated that Capsalis had not been exactly located, but they would send word when he was. The discovery of Maritza Capsalitza's body, packed in a trunk buried in the cellar of her home, unearthed the most gruesome murder in the history of this town. Previous to her death she had $200 in cash, which she carried in a bag around her neck. It was missing, and as Capsalis could not be found, it was the opinion of the police that he killed her for her money.

HAMLIN GETS GOOD NEWS; SEES HOPE IN PRIMARY RESULTS

The assurances given me by my friends in various parts of the State, and particularly in the Western counties, have been fully borne out by such information as has come to me regarding the caucuses. It has been evident for some time that the majority of the delegates to the convention would go unpledged, but I have been informed that a number of the delegates have already expressed a preference for my candidacy.—Charles S. Hamlin, candidate for Democratic nomination for Governor.

GRAHAME-WHITE IS CONFERENCE GUEST

Several prominent guests were entertained by the Atlantic Conference at its weekly luncheon yesterday afternoon, among them being Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator; Sydney MacDonald, his friend; Charles J. Glidden and Adams D. Claflin, manager of the Harvard-Boston aero meet. President A. Shuman presided. Brief addresses were made by Mr. Grahame-White, Mr. MacDonald, Alexander McGregor, General Charles H. Taylor, Mr. Glidden and Charles T. Gallagher. Others present were Colonel William H. Bunting, Colonel C. N. Wallace, H. Staples Potter, Jerome Jones, J. Nelson Parker, Frank G. Webster, John S. Lawrence, William H. Wellington, J. Howard Edwards and Theodore Jones.

CUTICURA CURED FAMILY OF ECZEMA

Father, Mother and Child had It for 8 Months, Heads Mass of Sores. Could Not Sleep. Itching Terrible. Cured in 2 Months.

"The Cuticura treatment has absolutely cured me and family of eczema which I, my wife and two-year-old child had for eight months. It started with small pimples on the head on my child which gradually broke out in sores, and it was not long before I and my wife got the same. Our heads were one mass of sores, we could not sleep and the itching was terrible. We suffered for eight months. We tried different kinds of ointments and medicine but it did us no good and could not begin to clear out on our bodies until a friend who had the same trouble told me about Cuticura of which I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent, and I was surprised after the first few days our heads began to heal and in two months we were absolutely cured of this terrible eczema." (Signed) Potthoff, 581 Ralph Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., February 18, 1910."

No stronger evidence than this could be given of the success and economy of the Cuticura Remedies in their treatment of torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, of infants, children and adults. A single hot bath with Cuticura Soap and a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing cases and permit rest and sleep when all else fails. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are equally effective in preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands and in preventing minor eruptions becoming chronic. A 32-page booklet giving description and treatment of skin affections will be sent free, on application, by the Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

for the sole purpose of making records for the Victor.

She spent the entire week of August 20-27 in the Victor laboratories at Camden, making a series of records by our new and improved recording process, and was so enthusiastic with the result that she made over her records already listed in the Victor catalogue.

These new Melba records are truly remarkable examples of the famous singer's glorious voice and conclusively demonstrate the great progress of the Victor.

These Melba records will be placed on sale with all Victor dealers in the early future. In the meantime drop in any store where you see the famous Victor trademark and just ask to hear the Victor or Victor-Victrola. You'll be astonished and wonder why you have waited so long.

GREAT OVATION FOR IRISH DELEGATES AT BUFFALO CONVENTION

BUFFALO, Sept. 28.—Not since the memorable visit of Charles Stewart Parnell to this country thirty years ago has any gathering of the sons of Erin equalled in numbers or enthusiasm the fifth biennial convention of the United Irish League now in session in this city.

The opening session of the convention was marked by a continuous ovation to the envoys, Redmond, O'Connor, Boyle, Devlin and their colleagues who are here to espouse the cause of Irish home rule.

Already money pledges have been received from all parts of the United States and Canada. Montreal, Irishmen alone have notified the convention that before the close of its sessions $10,000 will be sent from that city.

At the monster mass meeting, which closed the first day's sessions, John Redmond was cheered to the echo as he was escorted to the platform by Joseph K. Gavin and other prominent delegates. The great Irish leader began his address as the crowd stood and cheered. Mr. Redmond reviewed at length his many visits to America in the Irish cause, declaring that every promise made to the exiled sons of Erin in America had been redeemed. He praised the part America has taken in the transformation of 500,000 Irish peasants from a condition of practical serfdom to that of prosperous landowners.

Tillers Come to Their Own.

"To-day," said Mr. Redmond, "the greater part of the land of Ireland has changed from the hands of the landlords into the hands of the tillers of the soil. There are 300,000 peasant landowners in Ireland and the process is going on, and in a few short years every man who tills the soil will be the owner of his farm. Wild mountain land has been brought under cultivation again and all over the country there has been an absolute transformation of the position of the people.

"In the land war thousands of families were thrown out upon the roadsides. We have succeeded in wringing from the British parliament legislation not merely to restore these evicted families to their homesteads, but actually by public money to rebuild their ruined homes, and to restock their lands and to give them a start in life once more.

"The old mud hovel has disappeared and in its place by the legislation we have carried, 50,000 cottage-decent, healthful dwellings—have been erected.

"Education has been transformed. We have a primary, intermediary and university course open to any Irish lad, no matter how poor he be, so long as he has brains.

"In the past England has been able to carry in the long run her popular measures in spite of the opposition and delays of the House of Lords. The House of Lords is today as it has been in the past, a block in the path of home rule.

Lords Brought About Crisis.

But last year, in a moment of madness, the House of Lords rejected the budget passed by the House of Commons, and instantly precipitated the most acute constitutional crisis which has arisen in Great Britain for at least two centuries. The time has now come when the British democracy must curb the power of the House of Lords to override the decisions of the popular assembly.

"If the conference on the Lords' veto power leads to a compromise whereby the House of Lords, in order to save their existence, will agree to surrender their power of rejecting any bill which comes up from the Commons, then within the next two or three months the great obstacle in the path of home rule will have disappeared.

"If, on the contrary, the conference fails, then the fight against the lords will instantly revive. Success is certain either sooner or later."

Mr. Redmond explained how the Irish Nationalists had the balance of power and did not depend either on the Tories or Liberals to keep faith. If any British party be false to its pledges the Nationalists have in their power within one month to drive them from office.

"I am perfectly confident myself in the future," declared Mr. Redmond.

More than $3,000 was subscribed at the meeting, with much more pledged. The audience was kept in a jubilant uproar, as many prominent Germans contributed hundreds of dollars.

Mr. Redmond paid a high tribute to the men at the head of the United Irish League of America—Ryan, O'Callaghan and Fitzpatrick.

Tribute to Fitzpatrick.

"Since the last convention there has passed through my hands from different branches of the organization and individuals to the national treasurer, the sum of $4,910.50, for which I hold the national treasurer's receipts, the amount of which is duly credited in his report.

"The amount received by me from the funds of the organization since the last convention has been $50 for traveling expenses; one-half for attendance at a public meeting in Philadelphia and the remainder for attendance at a meeting of the National Committee in New York. The other officers have cost the organization nothing.

"Perhaps before closing this report I ought to call the attention of the delegates to the league publication which has been brought out monthly for nearly three years past, the United Irish League Bulletin of America. The convention will doubtless consider whether or not its further publication is required, or whether the peculiar conditions which were deemed sufficient to call it into existence require its continuance.

Cost of Publication.

"Having been charged with more or less responsibility for its conduct since its establishment, I trust at least that its work will not be considered as having been detrimental to the organization or the movement. The tendency of men, people being to accept gratuitously what they are often reluctant to pay for, has doubtless prevented many of those who desire to receive the Bulletin from remembering that it costs something to publish it. Whether the necessity for its maintenance any longer exists in view of the altered condition of affairs affecting the United Irish League of America I must will be determined by the convention."

Thomas R. Fitzpatrick of Boston, national treasurer, submitted his report. It showed that Massachusetts was the banner State in contributions for the cause since the last convention with a total of $20,782. Pennsylvania was next with $9,291, and New York third with $17,500. Of a total of $52,255 only $9,226 had been used for expenses.

Bishop Offered Prayer.

President Michael J. Ryan of Philadelphia called the first business session to order. The 1,000 delegates stood with bowed heads while Bishop Colton offered a prayer for divine inspiration in the work of the meeting and a speedy realization of Ireland's hope for freedom.

Formal welcome in the city was extended by Acting Mayor Keugedy and by Henry W. Killeen, representing the Parnell Branch of the United Irish League of Buffalo.

Mr. Killeen referred to the first meeting of the land league held here in 1881, from which date, he said, public opinion of America has been unitedly on the side of the Irish people in their demand for self-government.

President Ryan responded heartily to the words of welcome and then introduced John E. Redmond. The Irish leader made an earnest appeal for support of the good cause and was optimistic of its final success.

The regular business of the session was begun by the appointment of a committee on credentials, consisting of M. J. Jordan of Boston, J. P. Leahy of St. Louis, Michael Donohoe of Philadelphia, Lawrence Buckley of Chicago, Edmond J. McCormick of Buffalo, Robert O'Flaherty of New York, John L. Hanson of Baltimore and William F. Downey of Washington.

John O'Callaghan of Boston, national secretary, was named as secretary of the convention, with these assistants: John J. Pierce of New York, Edward McCormick of Buffalo, Dr. McAniff of Philadelphia and William H. Durkin of Chicago.

BROCKTON FAIR NOT TO ADVANCE PRICE

Many people seem to be under the impression that because the Brockton Fair has secured the services of Grahame-White at such an enormous outlay, the prices of admission will be advanced. The management announces that the price of tickets will be exactly the same as it has always been. A fifty-cent admission covers the entire fair, Grahame-White included. Every attraction was booked months ago, long before Grahame-White, the sterling aviator of the air, appeared upon the horizon, and was booked at a salary of $17,500 to fly every day during the fair.

WOMAN GETS ORDER AGAINST CITY BOARD

Judge Rugg has issued an order of notice returnable next Tuesday on petition of Emily L. Shepard that the Boston street commissioners be required to certify their records of the assessment for betterments on Columbia road, Dorchester. Mrs. Shepard owns property on Dorchester avenue, part of which was taken by the Park Commissioners for a parkway in 1902, after she agreed to certain restrictions on her land in exchange for the condition that a highway should be built in front of her land. She claims that there was no change.

JUNE BRIDE REVEALS HER SECRET TODAY

LYNN, Sept. 29.—A June wedding, the climax of a schoolboy romance, became known for the first time to-day, when the news was read by the parents of Miss Ethel M. Tucker in a letter sent to them by their daughter from the home of her husband. In the letter the daughter told of her marriage to Milton H. Bray on June 19th.

The daughter left her home in Salem yesterday to visit Lynn. Her letter was received this morning, and by noon her parents were at the home of the young couple in this city and had given their blessing.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore N. Tucker of No. 1 Federal street, Salem. The family formerly lived in Lynn. The daughter is a graduate of the Peabody High School, is eighteen years old, pretty, vivacious and athletic.

Young Bray has the record of being the youngest man to have been granted a professional chauffeur's license in this State. He was fourteen when he gained the license. He is now eighteen. At the time that he sought his license he went to Boston in an auto and took the secretary of the Highway Commission through the crowded streets of Boston in the car to convince him that he was entitled to the prize.

The youth and his bride have been sweethearts since childhood. Their parents knew of their attachment, but advised them to wait on account of their age. Line, then they went to Nashua, making the trip in rail and were married by Justice of the Peace Williams. Mrs. Bray discovered the secret from her son and the acknowledgment followed.

The couple are now living with the husband's parents at No. 18 Suffolk street. In the same street the elder Mr. Bray conducts a garage, where his son is employed.

CYMRIC DELAYED BY ROUGH WEATHER

The White Star liner Cymric, due to arrive to-day, is now fifteen hours late and will not dock until late to-morrow afternoon. The Cymric brings 200 saloon passengers and 600 in the steerage. A number of prominent Bostonians are among her passengers. Heavy fog and rough weather are responsible for the delay. Richard C. Maclaurin, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, E. A. Filene, Dr. E. A. Codman, Miss Codman and J. M. Codman, Miss Bertha Converse and Miss P. E. Converse are among the passengers.

CANADA'S PLANS STIR UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The announced intention of the Canadian Government to begin the exportation of electric power to the United States at places other than Niagara Falls has aroused the interest of War Department officials and of such congressmen as are now here. They are inclined to regard this proposed action as a violation of the spirit of the Burton law, which was intended to restrict importations of power in the immediate vicinity of the Falls. It is reported here that as soon as Congress assembles a bill will be introduced to impose a heavy customs duty on electric power imported into the United States at any point except at Niagara.

RUNAWAY BOYS ROB PEANUT MACHINES

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 28.—Daniel Lovett, Edward Wellman and Henry Best, runaway boys from Lynn, were picked up by the police here. Shortly after their arrest reports came in that several automatic peanut machines about the city had been robbed. The boys admitted the thefts, after the police found nearly a peck of the nuts which they had dumped out on the sidewalk through the bars of the cells.

HALE STATUE FUND HAS REACHED $5,328

The Edward Everett Hale statue fund now amounts to $5,328.50. Kidder, Peabody & Co. are custodians of it and they announce recent contributions which swell the amount previously acknowledged, $2,998, to the sum named above.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 200,000 more than its next highest competitor and 75,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

Odd Items

4 Nationalities and a Goose.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Policeman Kiernan appeared before Magistrate Freschi in the Harlem Court with David MacLean. MacLean desired to complain against Bernard Levy for keeping a goose in his apartment.

"Why do you keep the goose?" inquired Magistrate Freschi.

"It is to fatten, Your Honor," explained Levy, "to fatten for the great feast next Tuesday."

"Ahem," said Magistrate Freschi; "it seems to me this is a very complicated case. Here is an Irish policeman, with a Scotch complainant, who wants to make information against a Jew before an Italian magistrate. The only thing I can see to do in this case is to postpone it for one week, and in the meantime we will allow the defendant to eat the evidence."

Silver Coins for the Women.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The United States Treasury has in its general fund approximately $20,000,000 in subsidiary silver. "This is ample, and in fact more than ample, to take care of the government's commercial needs so far as we are now able to see them," says a statement issued at the treasury. "There has been a tendency on the part of banks, department stores and other concerns using much silver coin to request and receive during the last few years newly minted coin, which they have used over the counter primarily for advertising purposes, as the receipt of such coin by customers, particular lady customers, was much appreciated."

Brothers Die as Same Hour.

AURORA, Ill., Sept. 28.—Two telegrams by a singular coincidence were filed Sunday at 4 o'clock. One was sent from Aurora to David Smith at Watson, Mo., announcing the death of his brother, Captain C. H. Smith, an Aurora millionaire. The other was from Watson to the Aurora brother, telling of the death of David. Each telegram told that death occurred at 3:30 o'clock.

"Wireless" in the Schools.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—"Wireless telegraphy will be taught in the scientific course of the Washington High Schools," announces Dr. William A. Hedrick, director of instruction in the physics department.

MISS EDDINGTON, WHO IS HELD IN FORGERY CASE

LILLIAN M. EDDINGTON

Snapshot of accused young woman as she was leaving jail for court.

IS GUILTY OF KNIFE ATTACK

What may have been a "Black Hand" plot was disclosed in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court to-day, when eighteen-year-old Patsy Mete was found guilty of an assault with intent to kill Liberto Mastrollo of No. 44 Frankfort street, East Boston, by stabbing him with a knife.

The motive for the crime is a mystery. Neither of the men knew each other.

"Whether this was a case of personal spite or whether this man was hired to commit this crime is for you gentlemen of the jury to say," said Assistant District Attorney Thomas Lavelle in summing up for the Government.

According to Government witnesses, Mastrollo had just left his home August 4, when the defendant stepped up to him and asked him to read a card on which was written in Italian, "Go to Fleet street at twelve o'clock because ——." As he was reading the card the defendant, according to witnesses, stepped to one side, drew a knife and slashed Mastrollo's face and neck. In court, Mete denied being the assassin and his counsel claimed it was a case of mistaken identity. Mete gave his address as No. 10 Fleet street.

BARON'S SON AND WOMAN IN FORGERY CASE

A. Julian de Szyszkowski, who says he is the son of a Polish baron of Warsaw, and Miss Lillian M. Eddington, a young English woman, were held in $300 bonds each in Boston Municipal Court to-day for continued hearings on October 4 on charges of forging and uttering a check for $15.75. In default of bail the two were locked up in the Charles Street Jail.

While he was being photographed for the "Rogues' Gallery" the man said to Inspector Goodwin:

"My father is a Polish baron with big estates in Warsaw. I am highly educated and speak four or five languages."

The man's appearance bears out his statement about being educated, as he seems cultivated and a man of the world. Miss Eddington, who was arraigned in the woman's session before Judge Murray, was attired in blue suit, black straw hat and veil. She took the proceedings with utmost calm. Prior to her case being called she chatted with Frank Keezer, her attorney. She smiled and chatted as though not at all concerned by the serious charge against her.

The police charge the couple with forging and uttering a check for $15 on James J. Monroe of No. 66 Hanover street. The check bore the signature of T. J. Mannix and was drawn on the International Trust Company under date of September 4.

The couple lived on Massachusetts avenue. Miss Eddington is twenty-one years old and came here from England a few years ago. De Szyszkowski at one time attended a designers' school in Switzerland, where he met James J. Monroe, who employed as a designer by a local firm. It was on Monroe that the forged check was passed, according to the police.

SHIP'S WAITER PUT IN IRONS

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept. 28.—Some excitement was created on the arrival of the steamer Governor Cobb from Boston, when ship police were summoned to arrest a waiter. The man had been placed in irons for refusing duty. Captain Allen ordered him paid off and put ashore at Eastport, Me., but he refused to sign for his pay, claiming that he should be taken back to Boston. Under international law the police were unable to do more than warn the man. Another waiter, it is charged, assaulted Captain Allen. Both men will be put ashore at Eastport on the return trip.

ROPE SUICIDE BY SALESMAN

WALTHAM, Sept. 28.—Making a noose in a rope placed in the room for use as a fire escape, John Edwards, sixty, of Bloomfield, N. J., hanged himself in a local hotel. Edwards came here five weeks ago and has since been working as a salesman.

The AMERICAN is the Great Home Paper.

BUSINESS MEN URGE WEST END SUBWAY LOOP

The Boston Transit Commission and the State Railroad Commission announce that the next joint hearings given in reference to the proposed West End subway loop will take place on October 11 at the rooms of the Transit Commission, No. 15 Beacon street.

Merchants, property holders, real estate men and representatives of many business and commercial bodies attended the opening hearing. Alexander Whiteside represented a committee of petitioners for the loop, which it is proposed to build under Tremont street, Scollay square, Court street, Bowdoin square and Cambridge street.

Alexander McGregor of the firm of Hoagland & Dutton, Sherman L. Whipple, Daniel J. Kiley, S. Vorenberg, Mrs. Isabell Pendleton, John Bryant, Francis Bangs, Edmund Codman, A. C. Ratchesky, and many others favored the proposition. President B. J. Rothwell of the Boston Chamber of Commerce said that the public utilities committee of that body had given a hearing on the "loop" and was opposed to it, because it proposes to do away with the Summer street subway to the South Station.

McGregor Makes Plea.

Alexander McGregor made a strong plea to the commissioners in favor of the proposed subway. He said:

"The people of the city hold the opinion that careful and reasonable foresight has not been displayed in the city subway and tunnel work. One has only to look at the Sullivan square, the Park street station and the terminal at Dudley street to note how inadequate these are. Some improvement has been shown in the planning of the Washington street tunnel, as it has stations at frequent intervals, and these improvements it might be well to copy in the planning of the proposed loop."

Mr. McGregor spoke of the necessity of a station being constructed in the Tremont street subway at School street, and said that if sentimental reasons prevented any portion of King's Chapel being taken, that a location for exits and entrances could be secured in the Houghton & Dutton building. Continuing, he said:

Argue for Loop.

"I believe that the subway buildings in Scollay Square should be abolished. The stations can be made beneath the surface and the entrances and exits be placed in surrounding structures. It would do away with the congestion in the square."

Francis H. Bangs and A. C. Ratchesky both favored the proposition as being beneficial to the North and West Ends. William C. Codman and Charles E. Wyzanski also spoke briefly as to the depreciation of property values in the West End.

H. F. Bring, a Tremont street merchant, and H. W. Baxter, a real estate dealer of the West End, favored the "loop," and a letter of similar import was read from Julius C. Morse.

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS.

The annual election of directors of the Young Men's Catholic Association will be held Friday from 4 to 10 p. m. at the association rooms, No. 41 East Newton street. Four directors will be chosen. The candidates are Henry J. Jaudron, Fred J. Stiles, Charles F. Mahony, Leon F. Ober, Patrick F. O'Riordan, George E. McCalg, Charles F. McManus and Thomas A. Mulligan.

JOHN G. PARKER DEAD.

MADISON, Conn., Sept. 28.—John G. Parker, secretary of the New Haven railroad company, died to-day at his Summer home here. He had suffered from kidney trouble for some time.

REED TO MANAGE MOBILE.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 28.—Geo. Reed was to-day selected manager for the local baseball club in the Southern League for the 1911 season.

POLICE FIRE ON BURGLARS

LYNN, Sept. 28.—Policeman Joseph Devine on duty at Cliftondale square early to-day surprised two men who he thinks were about to attempt to enter the house of Edward Bryant on Myrtle street.

The men started to run when they caught sight of the man in uniform.

"Stop, or I'll shoot!" the policeman cried.

The men increased their pace. Then the policeman drew his revolver and began firing. He shot at the men four times. The men did not halt and the policeman failed to catch them.

A Practically Perfect Preparation.

Years of experience have enabled Mr. Fletcher to make Castoria a practically perfect preparation. These years of labor: the amount of money required to introduce its merits to the public: the investment in its manufacture, including the most modern machinery, mean a vast amount of invested capital. It follows that the greatest care is exercised in the selection of each ingredient, and the greatest attention is paid to every detail of its preparation. The result: The practically perfect preparation in the finished product; Fletcher's Castoria.

Herein lies the guarantee of the absolute safety in the use of Fletcher's Castoria for the baby, and the warning against irresponsible makers of imitations and counterfeits. The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher that is printed in black on the wrapper and red on the bottle is the mother's safeguard.

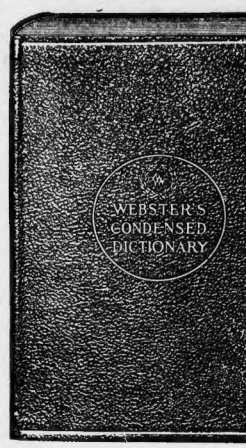
DON'T CLIMB THE FENCE! GO THROUGH THE GATE



THERE are scores of people out of every thousand who do things the hardest possible way. Instead of going through an open gate, they will insist on climbing the fence—and think they have really accomplished quite a feat when they find themselves on the other side.

They figure the success of their achievements by the efforts expended, never estimating that net results are the only satisfactory and lasting returns in the long run.

In the broad fields of education it is well to go through the turnstiles as we roam rather than attempt to climb every fence that obstructs our pathway.

It is conceded that the easiest way—in fact, the only satisfactory way—of understanding all the words we meet is by constant reference to a good dictionary.

In ordinary reading one seldom meets a word that is not contained in a dictionary of the scope of Webster's Condensed Dictionary. It contains about 50,000 words in general use, besides much other data of a reference nature, and no student outside of purely technical and professional lines will ever be likely to encounter a word that is not thoroughly explained in this valuable book.

It was because this book was so new, so comprehensive, so compact and so thoroughly established as a handy size condensation of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary that the Editors of the American chose it for the purpose of supplying their studious readers with the most valuable reference book that can be had today. No student should be allowed to go through the formative period of his reading unaccompanied by one of these books. No one who desires to read intelligently should neglect the present opportunity of getting a Webster's Condensed Dictionary.

They can be had on the following basis—three styles—three bindings—three nominal amounts:

No. 1—Webster's Condensed Dictionary—complete in every way—bound in fine cloth—7 consecutive Dictionary Coupons and 35 cents.

No. 2—Webster's Condensed Dictionary—complete in every way—bound in flexible leather—7 consecutive Dictionary Coupons and 65 cents.

No. 3—Webster's Condensed Dictionary—complete and amplified with charts and colored maps—bound in full black morocco—7 consecutive Dictionary Coupons and 95 cents.

Dictionary Coupons will be found on Page 2 of the Daily and Sunday American. You can start a set of seven any time—the set must contain 7 coupons cut on 7 consecutive days.

Dictionaries will be sent by mail on receipt of full set of coupons and bonus—together with 15 cents to pay postage.

Now get to work and own a dictionary—especially for the benefit of the children.

DR. PETERS IS DUSTED FROM CATTLE BUREAU

Dr. Austin Peters, chief of the State Cattle Bureau, was to-day refused reappointment when Governor Draper sent to the executive council the nomination of ex-Representative Fred Freeland Walker of Burlington, as Dr. Peters's successor.

The appointment of former Representative Walker is the first indication that Dr. Peters was to be replaced. The former head of the Cattle Bureau has been under fire by the farmers, cattle men, and dog breeders in the State for the past few years. The Governor's action is taken as a recognition of their protests.

Mr. Walker, the new head of the Cattle Bureau, is considered an expert in the raising of garden produce and live stock. He is the proprietor of the Walker farm in Burlington and his herd of pure bred Holsteins and Jerseys ranks with the best in the State. He served in the Legislature in 1906, and was a member of the Committee on Agriculture. He is master of the Woburn Grange, a member of the Massachusetts Cattle Owners' Association and the New England Holstein and Friesian Breeders' Club.

MRS. SLATER MUST PAY TO KEEP GOWNS

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Mrs. Horatio N. Slater of Boston must pay the Government $2,196.28 if she wishes to retain the handsome Paris gowns which she brought into the United States aboard the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. She forgot to declare eleven of them, valued at $1,553. They have been seized and, will be sold unless Mrs. Slater pays the customs charges.

Mrs. Slater on her arrival from Europe declared ten gowns valued at $1,400, but the inspectors ordered her nine trunks held for examination and found the additional eleven. Accompanied by her brother, Paul Hunt of Boston, she visited the customs house and was told that the duty on the gowns declared would be $878.58. This she promptly paid. She was then ordered to pay the foreign value of the gowns as a penalty for failing to declare them in addition to $843 duty. Unless the money is forthcoming the gowns will be held.

BAY STATE COW MENACED BY NEW RATES

The Massachusetts cow is threatened with extinction by the present Boston & Maine freight tariffs on milk, according to William A. Grunstein, president of the Boston Dairy Company.

In speaking before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty at the Federal building to-day Mr. Grunstein said:

"If the present rates are maintained the Massachusetts cow will disappear. The milk consumers of Boston will be compelled to use milk brought from a distance and poorly handled."

The hearing to-day was a continuance from one held in August. When the Saunders bill was passed and the Boston & Maine established a new milk tariff with a flat rate per can per mile, the milk contractors were given $120 days in which to produce evidence in protest.

To-day's hearing is to enable the contractors, through their attorneys, to submit additional evidence. Attorneys present were John H. Cusick for D. Whiting & Sons, A. Grunstein for the Boston Dairy Company, William R. Sears for the H. P. Hood Company, and John A. Loudige for the Boston & Maine.

The milk attorneys introduced much documentary evidence to show the exact cost of transporting milk within the milk zone of Boston under the new rates.

William A. Grunstein was questioned on the witness stand by his brother, the attorney. At this time William A. Grunstein made his prophecy of the extinction of the Massachusetts cow if the rates were not abated.

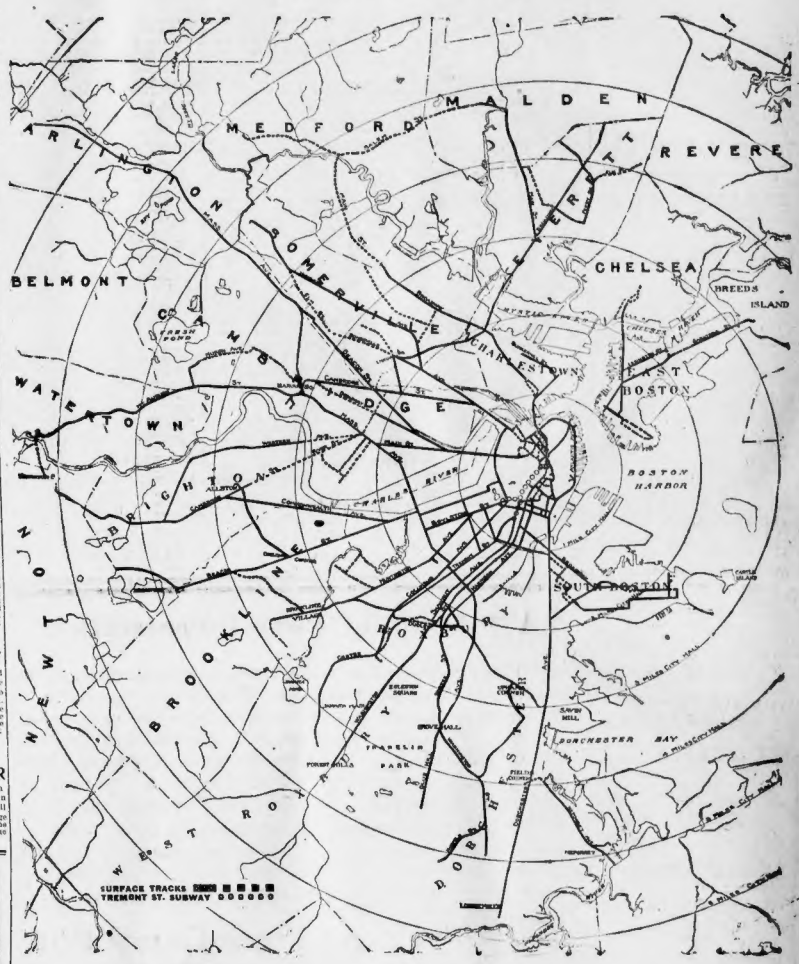
What the Boston Elevated Has Done for Rapid Transit

Extensions and Additions, Subways, Elevated and Surface, Which It Has Provided

MAP NO. 1, JANUARY, 1898



Because of the consideration to be given by state boards and commissions to questions of further extensions, and additions to existing rapid transit facilities, the Boston Elevated Railway Company deems the present a proper occasion to show by map and explanatory comment the exact scope and detail of what has been added to the transit facilities of Boston since the company assumed charge in January, 1898.

While in general the company believes the facilities now in use and those to which the company is committed are orderly and comprehensive, yet neither the company nor its directors claim they are wholly free from defects, nor do they for a moment believe that nothing more remains to be done. The company believes that intelligent criticism, based upon popular experience, may point out specific opportunities for betterment. The company welcomes helpful criticism and suggestion and, so far as feasible, is always glad to incorporate such suggestions in actual operation.

When the company took charge, the population of the cities and towns in which it operates was approximately 843,090. Now it is approximately 1,098,917—an increase of only about 30%. At the beginning of the period there was invested $25,960,000. Today the investment stands at $81,440,000—an increase of 213%.

This map, the first of a series, shows the system as it was in January, 1898. There were then 304½ miles of surface track. The dotted lines show single track. Attention is called to the Tremont-Street Subway, shown by small circles. At that time only the Park Street loops of this subway were in operation. The size and situation of this subway in relation to the rest of the system should be noted.

Crawford Ranges

Combination Coal and Gas

A combination coal and gas range is the ideal range and an economic necessity in a well ordered kitchen. Gas is convenient in summer and for light work in winter as an auxiliary to a coal range—but where continuous fire is needed as in winter for constant hot water supply and for keeping the kitchen warm a coal range is less expensive, more satisfactory and also more healthful, as it does not vitiate the air of a closed room as a gas range does.

The Crawford combination ranges have gas ovens that are safe against explosions. The burners are lighted in a new way; there is no dangerous pilot light. This improvement is very important and is patented.

The Gas Oven Damper is automatically opened by the opening of the oven door to light the burner.

There is an extra set of burners at the top for broiling; a great advantage over the ordinary gas oven.

Gas Oven and Coal Range can be used at same time.

Double Oven above or Single Oven at the end.

The Crawford Coal range with its Single Damper (patented), its wonderful Oven, its Ash Hod in the base with Coal Hod beside it, is a joy to cooks.

PATROLMAN ON HORSEBACK CHASES THIEF

Wilbur L. Melvin, mounted patrolman at Scollay square, pursued James Vatrouli, who was on foot, from Tremont row, through Scollay square, down Hanover street and around into Elm street this afternoon, finally catching up with the fugitive and arresting him in a flying leap from the saddle.

Vatrouli was accused by Mrs. Alexander Vachaud of No. 895 Washington street, Lynn, of snatching a dollar bill from her hand on Tremont street.

Mrs. Vachaud was putting change back into her purse after making a purchase in a store. She said that Vatrouli came up behind her, snatched a bill and ran. Mrs. Vachaud did not even know how large a bill was taken. She screamed "Stop, thief!"

Vatrouli ran toward Scollay square and met Patrolman Melvin. The mounted officer whirled his horse and clattered after Vatrouli, with Mrs. Vachaud and about 200 others bringing up the rear. The chase and the racket roused the whole busy district.

DENIES TOMFOHRDE BUILDING REPORT

Arthur P. Pierce, one of the executors of the will of A. Tomfohrde, denies the report that a large ten-story building is to be erected on the site now occupied by Tomfohrde's restaurant. Mr. Pierce states that there was some talk of this before the will was made, but the plan had been definitely dropped several years ago. Mr. Pierce states that he will conduct the restaurant until such time as he is ready to retire, and as this will be a great many years from now, Tomfohrde's will continue to be run as a first-class restaurant at the present quarters until such time.

ALL STOMACH TROUBLE VANISHES AFTER TAKING A LITTLE DIAPEPSIN.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fulness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal distress. Brides Now Claiming Interest of Society

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Brides and their numerous happy affairs are occupying the greater part of society's interest these days, and wedding invitations are flying about at a greater rate than ever.

The initial wedding of the coming month will be that next Saturday, at the First church, Brookline, of Miss Anne Dwight Mills and John Whitman, Jr., of Brookline. The ceremony which takes place at 12 o'clock, will be performed by the Rev. William H. Lyon, the pastor.

The prospective bride is a daughter of Mrs. Arthur Mills of Irving street, and will be given in marriage by her brother, Charles H. Mills. Lewis Thorndike of Brooklyn, N. Y., is to be best man, and Miss Mary O. Whitman, a sister of the bridegroom, will be maid of honor. Theresa, the dainty little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip De Normandie of Milton, and a niece of the bride, is to be the flower girl. The Misses Dorothy Coburn of Jamaica Plain, Janet Ritchie, Katherine Higginson and Sarah Hiles of Brookline, will be four bridesmaids. Arnold Whitman, a brother of the groom; Hendricks Whitman, a cousin, also of Brookline; Drury Sheraton and Charles Vinal are to act as ushers. A reception will follow the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother.

After returning from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Whitman will make their home on High street, Brookline.

Another interesting wedding on Saturday will be that of Miss Anita Clark, daughter of Mrs. Homer B. Richardson, and John Varney Woodard of Bangor, Me., son of Mrs. Charles F. Woodard. This ceremony is to take place at 12:30 at St. Paul's church, Dedham, the Rev. Francis L. Whittemore officiating. Miss M. Frances Clark, sister of the bride, will be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Jessie Hazard of New York, Miss Florence Burton of Cedarhurst, L. I., Miss Cornelia B. Hoyt of New York, Miss Eleanor Quincy and Miss Ruth Wilson, both of Dedham, and Miss Elizabeth Jackson of Boston. Gilbden Osborne of Chicago will be best man, and the ushers chosen are William C. Gilbert of Cincinnati, Louis Starr, Jr., of John J. Higginson, Jr., both of New York; Henry E. Wilbur of Philadelphia, and William Minot and Benjamin Loring Young, both of Boston. A small breakfast will follow the ceremony at "Midwood," Dedham, the home of the bride's mother, which will be attended by only the relatives and a few friends.

October 6 is the date set for the wedding of Miss Virginia Lee Gammon of Marlboro street, daughter of Mrs. Frank Royal Gammon, and Stewart Robert Arnold, son of Beacon street, Brookline. The ceremony will take place at the summer home of the bride at Centre Harbor.

Another wedding on the same day which interests a large circle of Brookline fashionables will be that of Miss Irene J. Brown, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Brown of Beacon street, Brookline, and Edward A. Watson, which is to take place in the First Parish church on Walnut street. At the conclusion of their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Watson are to reside at Wellesley Hills.

Among the late October brides will be Miss Juliana Russell, whose marriage to Harold Francis Mason is scheduled to take place at Christ church, Cambridge. Miss Russell is the second daughter of Joseph R. Russell of Cumberland, and has long been a belle in the smart university set of that city. Her older sister is Mrs. Robert Hinde Neilson of Washington square, N. Y. Her older brother, Joseph R. Russell, Jr., married Jacqueline Kelley, a daughter of Commander J. D. Jerrold Kelley, U. S. N. Mr. Mason is one of the five sons of Mrs. Mortimer B. Mason. He is a member of the Tennis and Racquet club and of the Harvard class of '05.

It is a decidedly interesting group of girls Miss Emily Rossiter Bond has chosen to attend her on the occasion of her marriage to John W. Cheney Brooks, on the 22d of October. It includes, among others, Miss Edith Dawson, whose marriage to George Peabody has been postponed to January. Miss Katherine Tweed, who figured prominently in the smart events of the North Shore during the past season, and Miss Dagmar Wes, more, a sister of Mrs. A. L. Devens, Jr., of Milton.

Listen to Your Stomach

It Gives Words of Most Serious Warning and Appeals Aloud for Help.

When by overeating and ezce ses, poor cooking and imperfect mastication, late hours and physical abuse, your stomach is deprived of its strength, and lies irritated an i sick, then it is that this wonderful machine signals for help and begins to talk. Listen to it. Sometimes it says don't eat so much, don't give me such work to do

Straight Talk from the Stomach.

The stomach does not talk like you would like it to, but you could listen and you should heed it.

When foul breath makes people turn away from you, when pains and nausea come and go before and after meals, when gases distend your abdomen and affect your heart, when false appetite and stomach craving comes to you, when the sight of a meal makes you sick and when many other evears of illce chiefly happen, your stomach is talking.

It is trying to tell you that its peristatic or churning muscles are irritated and unfit for work, that alkali lefting the stomach and digesting and eating the membrane within, that the juices are not doing their work and consequently are penal ting the food to lie for hours, eventually decaying and passing on to the bowels, where such food is absorbed in to poisonous state and taken up by the lymphatic system and the blood.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will give to the stomach all it needs. They will ease up the peristatic muscles they d'lute the alkali juices, enrich these and digest the food when the stomach is unable to do so.

Don't say they cannot help you. Why, these tables will digest a hearty meal placed in a glass tube, without aid from the stomach.

One grain of a single ingredient will digest 3,000 grains of fat. It is due your stomach to reply to its appeal. Send today for a trial package of these digesters. It will prove these tablets marvels, and the an worst will come from your stomach. Send your name and address, and we will send you a trial package free by mail. Address F. A. WANT BAN ON RANGE LIFTED

The Massachusetts Rifle Association through a motion in the Suffolk Superior Court, to-day sought to have the temporary injunction restraining it from target practice on the Woburn range dissolved on the ground that the range has been made free from danger by improvements.

Major Hilman, inspector of rifle practice, told Judge Pierce that the range is now safe and that there is no danger from stray bullets on the land of the petitioners who secured the injunction a few months ago.

One of the most important features of Major Hilman's testimony to-day was the declaration that in the future target practice on the range would be confined exclusively to experienced marksmen.

Counsel for the petitioners was not satisfied that all danger is past. Judge Pierce gave him one week in which to secure experts to contradict the testimony of Major Hilman, if possible.

GAYNOR OUT; 7 CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The Democrats started in today to build a platform, and select a man for the gubernatorial nomination for the State Convention which opens here to-morrow. Mayor Gaynor's second letter, in which he said that he would refuse the gubernatorial nomination, has left what are the leaders term an open field, with James S. Havens apparently leading, in the estimation of many of the 90 State lieutenants.

The committee on platform met to consider a draft which Edward M. Shepard brought with him. Some of the tentative planks closely resemble the policies urged by Theodore Roosevelt in his "new nationalism" movement, notably the one pertaining to direct primaries.

Seven Gubernatorial Booms.

The eve of the convention found seven full-fledged gubernatorial booms in full swing with a general appearance of harmony, and Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, declaring that Tammany had no special preference for any one man. The booms were for:

Congressman Sulzer of New York.
Former State Controller Martin H. Glynn of Albany.
Representative James S. Havens of Rochester.
Thomas M. Osborne of Auburn.
Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn.
Justice Gerard of the State Supreme Court.
John A. Hennessy of New York.

The withdrawal of Mayor Gaynor threw the leaders into temporary confusion. It had been predicted that Gaynor stood a strong chance of being nominated by acclamation, and it was known that he was not alone favored by Tammany, but by many of the delegates and leaders from other sections of the State.

Looks Like Harmony.

A series of conferences was started today which were expected to last all night and up until the doors of the convention hall are opened to-morrow. State Chairman John A. Hitt said to-day that the convention would set a new mark in Democratic ranks for harmony. Until this morning not a single contest had been filed with Secretary Mason of the committee.

The Gaynor bombshell had the effect of stimulating the balance of the booms to-day. There were enthusiastic gatherings and energetic exercise of promises.

RHODES SCHOLAR EXAMS NEXT MONTH

Examinations for the selection of a Rhodes scholar from Massachusetts will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, October 25 and 26, in Room 207 of the Administration Building of Harvard Medical School. A new arrangement which is in effect for the first time is the provision that a candidate conditioned in entrance Greek at Oxford University may now become free from that condition by passing either the qualifying examination in Greek in October or by passing the examination in the specuians Greek at Oxford. President Lowell of Harvard is the chairman of the committee of selection of scholars from Massachusetts.

REGISTRATION IS NEAR 5,000 AT HARVARD

Registration took place at Harvard today, preparatory for the opening of all departments of the college and university to-morrow for the year 1910-11.

It is expected that the venerable institution will include in academic and graduate schools about five thousand pupils. Last year it numbered around forty-eight hundred. The freshman class last year included seven hundred and eighty young men. This year they look for over eight hundred.

The committee on platform met to consider a draft which Edward M. Shepard brought with him. Some of the tentative planks closely resemble the policies urged by Theodore Roosevelt in his "new nationalism" movement, notably the one pertaining to direct primaries.

The committee on platform met to consider a draft which Edward M. Shepard brought with him. Some of the tentative planks closely resemble the policies urged by Theodore Roosevelt in his "new nationalism" movement, notably the one pertaining to direct primaries.

This is the two hundred and seventy-fifth year of the institution. The year 1910-11 is also interesting from other collegiate standpoints. It is the first year of the new football rules, which are a source of vexed discussion. It is the second year of the revised Harvard color (artificial blood).

Pupils poured into Harvard square, the yard and the "Gold Coast" from all over the educational map. As usual, they embraced about every variety of collegian so far listed. There were sons of multifactors of great wealth, sons of poor men, sons of ancestry and sons of ordinary people. There were husky football timber, pale-faced students and "grinds"; members of what is popularly known as the "younger social set" and "members of this club," as the sporting writers have it.

Multiple greetings were in order. Those seniors exchanged lordly salutations. Haughty juniors renewed acquaintance. Sophomores didn't know the freshmen and the freshmen didn't know even themselves.

Leaders in college life were pointed out to the uninformed.

"See that fellow, Bjinks, the half-miler," said a wise one to a newcomer. And the newcomer stared reverently at Bjinks.

So by several "Old Home Days" made their way about with accustomed ease and the "new uns" put their feet down very carefully.

Recitations begin to-morrow.

THEF T$29; COSTS MICHIGAN JUST 310

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 28.—Depot Sergeant Schaefer of Grand Rapids, Mich., came here four days ago with a warrant charging Warren Adams, a coal passer on the Michigan Central road, with the larceny of $29, when a meal store clerk in the Michigan state police joined the navy. Before the sheriff was given authority to take Adams back with him the case had cost the State of Michigan $270 for requisition papers and railroad fare, and $10 for food for the thief on the officer's board. If Adams is acquitted, Michigan must pay the transportation back to his ship and all the expenses of the trial.

COMPROMISE UPON FRATERNAL ORDERS

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 28.—After an all-night conference the national insurance commissioners, who are in convention here, to-day adopted a compromise agreement regulating fraternal insurance societies throughout the United States. The commissioners were in joint conference with a committee from the National Fraternal Congress and another from the American Fraternal Association. An effort will be made to have Congress enact the bill into a law.

BISCUIT COMPANY PRESIDENT HELD

Nathan Hoffman, president of the American Biscuit Company, was held for the Grand Jury by Judge Wentworth in the Municipal Court to-day on the charge of larceny of $300 from his firm. Hoffman waived examination and was held in $500 bail. The biscuit concern claims that Hoffman's accounts were found to be short. The defendant declared the funds were due him for traveling expenses.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Details of the confession of State Senator W. D. Holtslaw of Iuka, that he accepted a money bribe for $2,000 for casting his vote for William Lorimer for the United States Senate, were to be told when the hearing of the charges against Lorimer were resumed before the Senate investigating committee to-day. Holtslaw takes the stand at the conclusion of the testimony of Representative Charles A. White, who, on the stand, openly charged that he was paid $1,000 by Lee O'Neil Browne to vote for Lorimer.

FIVE INJURED IN TRAIN COLLISION

WAUKESHA, Wis., Sept. 28.—Five persons were seriously injured to-day at Vernon, six miles south of here, when a passenger train collided head-on with a freight train as the result of mistaken orders. The injured men were members of the passenger train's crew.

WIDOW IS RESTRAINED.

A preliminary injunction was issued by Judge Pierce in the Suffolk Superior Court, on petition of Theodore H. Trouble, special administrator of the estate of William F. Mead, restraining the widow, Mary A. Mead, and the sons from disposing of personal property belonging to the estate.

TWO YOUNG GIRLS LOST AT AMESBURY

AMESBURY, Sept. 28.—Following the mysterious disappearance of two girls of prominent families in the Pleasant Valley section of this place, posses to-day made a search for Lucile Doe, aged nineteen, daughter of Frank Doe, a contractor of Amesbury, and Ethel Wilson, thirteen, a daughter of Angus N Wilson.

Both girls were pupils in the Amesbury High School. When last seen they went into a clump of wood immediately back of their homes, which are in the same neighborhood. Fearing foul play, their families gave the alarm.

They disappeared Monday. That night, neighbors in large numbers turned out with the families and made a thorough hunt through the woods. No clews were found that would lead to information as to the whereabouts of the two girls. At midnight the disappearance was reported to the Amesbury police.

Since that time the search has been carried on without cessation. To-day the police rescued their wide scouring the surrounding country. Carriages were used. Scores of citizens and farmers from the outlying districts formed posses to search the woods.

According to the Wilsons, the two girls had only about 30 cents between them when they left. They came from school and, after eating and being chums, went out, saying they were going to pick grapes. The Doe and Wilson families had $10.

The first clew that seemed tangible came to the police to-day. It was reported that two girls had been seen near Merrimack-port walking toward Haverhill. No detailed description could be had of this pair, so it is doubtful that they were the Doe and Wilson girls.

"BOOTS" READY TO EAT AGAINST ALL BOSTON

Boston, the Athens of America, seems in a fair way to add new laurels to her fame. The long-distance eating championship for that part of the country east of the Mississippi may take place in this very city, now that "Boots" Repetti of Washington is coming here.

"Boots" claims the belt for the champion "eats," open or amateur. His record in Washington looks like several cans of photo menus strung in a line. Boots is coming to Boston soon to defend his title, as shown by a telegram received by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

The telegram reads:

Washington, Sept. 27.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

CLYMER MAY MANAGE YANKS NEXT SEASON

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 28.—Manager William J. Clymer of the Wilkesbarre team of the New York State League, is thought to have received an offer to manage the New York Americans next season. Clymer says he is in such a position that he cannot make any statement concerning the matter. President John Farrell called him up by telephone. They had a long talk and Clymer admitted to-day that he is going to New York in a few days and will likely see Farrell on business. Clymer managed the Columbus team of the American Association for four seasons and won pennants in three of the five seasons, besides making the team a success financially. This season he had charge of the Wilkesbarre team being one of the owners, and he won another pennant and the team also cleared about $15,000.

DICK HYLAND NOT IN PACKEY'S CLASS

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Packy McFarland, the much touted Chicago bantam, outclassed Fighting Dick Hyland in their ten-round bout at the Fairmount A. C. On neither toe scores was Hyland able to make the contest interesting.

BAT NELSON IS SRTONG OVER HIS NEW AUTO

By Tad.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Battling Nelson has gone honey with the easeli wagon at present in Kansas City, tearing up every road within fifty miles of the place.

He landed there last week with Abdul the Turk, and started hunting up auto shops. They tried out ten different brands until the Dane got tangled up and had in the forty-five horsepower class and put the clampers on that.

He took Abdul the Turk on a run to Topeka the other night, and after skinning over a flock of quail ran into a bank and dumped the machine over. Both Abdul the Turk and himself were tossed out, but they were so far away from the car that neither was damaged outside of a few scratches.

Nelson sent a picture postal in to-day and on the back has written, "Will race any fighter in the world, black, white or pink; send them along. Will be East soon to show you my gait."

* * *

We have more automobile driving boys now than we have fighters. Barney Johnson, McCoy and Wolgast are the only real fighting kids left, and they are up to the busy wagons in easy stages. He still has his old horse and cab.

* * *

John J. Gleason, the great promoter, is still wandering around Brooklyn throwing away $20 bills to the newsies. If John could only learn to save his money he'd be a great help to his family.

* * *

And would you believe it, Tom Sharkey is still training? He's a bear. Every morning at 10 the hero takes a walk and means it, too. Have a care, Lil Artha Johnson.

* * *

Silent Charlie Harvey was up with his gold-bonded cane from California labelled Lew Nevin.

Lew never saw New York before. "He's just as big a Joe as the rest of them," said Harvey over a cup of coffee Broadway for a stroll and noticed Lew breaking his neck at the signs. "What's the matter, Lew? I asked, stopping for a second.

"Gee Whittaker, I'm all right, only the deuce is that fellow Rathskeller who owns all these saloons?"

GOLF GOSSIP CLUB NOTES

The Massachusetts golf team proved a marked supremacy over the ten players from Rhode Island in the team match last Saturday, but the Bay State players have got their work out for them next Friday and Saturday at the Ardsley club matches at the Myopia Hunt Club, at Hamilton, Mass.

* * *

New York has always won the Tri-City competitions and has a strong team this year. Pennsylvania, however, with its extended district golf, with its host of players, will be here stronger than ever this year. Mr. W. W. Fownes, the national amateur champion, is one of the team and will strengthen it materially.

* * *

During the middle of the month of October the national championship for women will be held over the course of the Homewood Country Club, at Flossmoor, Ill.

* * *

Miss Dorothy Campbell, the British player and present champion, will defend her title and bids fair to win national honors here again. The Boston women players, it is understood, will not attend this championship to any great degree, as the travel is too great for the limited play.

* * *

The Essex County Club is going to have some more changes to its course this Fall, and it is expected that when the course opens again in the Spring, that as much will have been done to the Manchester links as was done to the Country Club toward making it a championship course. From the revised layout of the new holes one who has visited the course during the past year would not recognize it as the same links, next Spring.

* * *

Another sporting match of no little importance is being planned at the Brae Burn Country Club, which is expected that the two Rose brothers will play Wilson Matthews and Jack McGinley, the Wollaston "pro," in a foursome. This match would be a great drawing card for golf and the enthusiasts in Boston would like to see how the Rose brothers play.

ASK RECEIVER FOR ARMORY ATHLETIC CLUB

In the Suffolk Superior Court to-day, Judge Pierce issued an order of notice returnable next Tuesday, on a petition brought by John Mooney, who asks that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the affairs of the Armory Athletic Association, the well-known boxing club. The club is located at No. 541 Tremont street.

Mooney asks that the affairs of the club be placed in the hands of a disinterested person, in order to avoid a lack of harmony. The club was formed by Mooney, Daniel W. Lane, Jeremiah J. Murray, William A. and Abel S. Pierce, each to have an equal interest in the profits and management. Mooney claims that the others have refused to allow him to take part in the club's affairs.

Trouble has been brewing for several weeks between Johnny Mooney and the trustees of the Armory Association. The Armory organization is incorporated as a club and controls the valuable areas at No. 541 Tremont street, which is chiefly notable because of its boxing bouts.

Mooney, who is one of the best known young men in Boston sporting circles, contends that he was one of the originators of the association and is entitled to share in its profits and its property. The trustees of the association declare that Mooney has no rights whatever; that he is not even a member of the club.

William A. Pierce, the watchmaker of the association, was ill recently and Mahlon Murray, one of the leaders of the organization, also became ill. They say that during that time, Mooney was employed by the trustees of the boxing club to send Mooney went to Reno to see the Jeffries-Johnson fight and on his return put in a claim for a percentage of the income of the club. His claim was disputed and that is the basis of the present action.

The Armory Association has a big membership and its income from boxing bouts is large. It is said to be in very prosperous financial condition, and the action taken to-day was said to be mainly to secure an accounting and settlement of the dispute between Mooney and the trustees.

BARNEY OLDFIELD BREAKS RECORDS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 28.—Barney Oldfield set four new world's records on the State fair track here. In the event of five-mile race against time Oldfield in a Knox car traveled the distance in 2:34.17, beating the record which was held by Ralph De Palma. He covered the first twenty miles in new time, setting a mark of 18.15.5. De Palma held the former record of 18.30, made at Grand Rapids. The fifteen miles were made in 13.41 2-5.

Oldfield also set a new mark in the one hour event, traveling 60¾ miles during the hour, beating the old record by 1½ miles.

CORNELL PLAYS ITS FIRST GAME

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The Cornell football eleven made its first appearance of the season here to-day, when the local squad meets Hobart on the gridiron. Coach Reed of Cornell has selected the following lineup, only three of whom were regulars last year:

Pitcher, l.e.; Munk, l.t.; Bate, l.g.; Stimpson, c.; Champlain, r.g.; Austin, r.t.; Baker, r.e.; Simpson, q.b.; Robb, l.h.; Bates, r.h.; Smith, fb.

YOUNG KID BROAD WINS TAME BOUT

MEMPHIS, Sept. 28.—Young Kid Broad won a decision over Tommy O'Keefe here in a rather tame bout. Broad was hurriedly substituted for Tommy Devlin, who said he was ill, and went in outweighing O'Keefe by several pounds.

FAMOUS RACER DEAD.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 28.—Berwick, by Alan-A-Dale, one of the most noted horses on the American turf, is dead of colic at the race track here. The animal was owned by T. C. McDowell and was the winner of many races. Because of defective breathing a rubber tube was inserted in Berwick's throat some time ago. He was valued at $10,000.

TALENT GETS JOLT.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 28.—Shooting Spray surprised the race followers here by defeating Governor Gray and County Tax, coupled in the betting and strong favorites in the fourth race. Hiram, a well backed second choice, took the fifth from Judge Walton and Nettie Traver in a driving finish.

MACK PLANS TO USE STRUNK IN BIG SERIES

Watch Connie Mack in the world series.

They are discussing Eddie Collins, Coombs, Bender, Plank, Baker, Barry and others with the names of Evers, Tinker, Brown, Overall, Kling, Archer, Chance, et al., on the other side, comparing their respective ability and so forth, but the greatest of them has been omitted in most instances.

Connie Mack will be opposed in Frank Chance. The first named known in some quarters as "The Old Fox," and the other as "The Peerless Leader." The battle between these two will be more important than the struggle on the field and it will be the dominating fight in the coming series for the world's championship.

The career of Mack has been a career of surprises. He has done things that others would sidestep as impracticable; he has filled his line-ups with average players and developed them into champions; he has done these things and others.

Philadelphia has won the pennant with a team that probably would finish second or third with any other leader, excepting three in the major leagues, at its head. He achieved much success by doing the unexpected and in this coming series depend on Mack to spring on what will not be expected of him.

The leader of the Athletics has several plans developed. The chief advantage of these plans may be estimated by considering one of them.

Amos Strunk, utility outfielder of the Athletics, will be started on the regular lineups in the world series.

He'll Play Strunk.

This statement comes from a man close to Mack, a man whose word has never been doubted. The information was revealed to-day.

Now, the name of Strunk has not even been mentioned by those who are doping out the chances the Athletics have against the Cubs. He has played eleven games this year, and no one has given him a serious thought—no one but Mack.

Because of Confidence.

"Why will you use Strunk with all these experienced outfielders around?" Connie was asked.

"Because I have confidence in him."

"But may be one reason, and there may be others; there probably are; there may be one of them:

Strunk's average for eleven games:

AB.	R.	H.	TB.	Avg.
32	14	13	17	.406

Now, a man with that sort of a record ought to have some ability, and Connie firmly believes that Strunk has. He has said so on several occasions, and he also admits that he has been saving him for the big series.

May Do What Rohe Did.

If Strunk should go in and tear things up he would not be setting a precedent. Remember George Rohe in 1906? He had as much to do with winning a world's championship for the White Sox as any man, and Rohe was only a utility infielder. But he raged through with all sorts of dazzling fielding stunts that won a reputation for him which has lasted, although he passed from the league the next season.

Strunk was born in Philadelphia in 1889. He is a six-footer and weighs in the neighborhood of 165 pounds. Last season, immediately after school was out Strunk joined the Athletics. Connie farmed him to Minneapolis for a higher baseball experience, but pulled him back this Spring, and has kept him on the bench with the exception of the eleven games he played.

AUTO MARKS GO IN GREAT CUP TRIALS

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Sept. 28.—Nearly all of the forty-two racers that will compete for the Vanderbilt cup on Saturday were out for speed tests to-day. Fifteen of the racers did better than a seventy miles an hour and all of them did better than sixty.

Jack Fleming of the Pope-Hartford team and Al Livingstone of the Nationals hooked up for a number of fast laps and succeeded in reeling off the best time that has been made with the exception of 10 16 lap made by Bobby Burman on Saturday.

Fleming's fast lap was 10:20, an average of about seventy-four miles an hour for the 12 64 miles course. Livingstone did a lap in 10 31 and another in 10 36. There is plenty of betting on the race. The Locomobile work and Pope-Hartford and National drivers has brought them many supporters.

Fast Cars in Doubt.

The Marquette-Buick are said to be the fastest cars on the course, but as they have never made much of a showing in distance races, there is doubt as to their staying qualities.

Colonel George Pope made a fast circuit of the track with Jack Fleming and was greatly pleased with the work of the cleven Pope-Hartfords.

Billy Knipper, who was nearly killed on Monday, when his Marquette car was wrecked, was out for practice in a new Lancia. His appearance brought forth many a cheer.

Bobby Robertson, who was hurt last week at Massapequa turn, will be taken from the Nassau County hospital at Mineola to his home in Flatbush.

The course is getting faster every day, but the drivers are of the opinion that the large field of cars that will be on the starter on Saturday morning will interfere with speed.

Draw Numbers To-night.

They estimate that the winner will average about sixty-two miles an hour for the 278 miles of the Vanderbilt. The drivers will draw for racing numbers to-night at the Garden City Hotel.

The best time made to-day were as follows:

Jack Fleming, Pope-Hartford, 10:20; Al Livingstone, National, 10:31; Jack Aitken, National, 10:37; Louis Disbrow, National, 11:39; David Bruce-Brown, Buick, 11:40; Harry Grant, Alco, 11:14; Eddie Rickenbacker, Fiat, 11:15; Howard Wilhard, Mercedes, 11:21; Lindsay, Mould-Rockwell, 12:03; Schultz, Schultz, 12:05; Arthur Chevrolet, Marquette-Buick, 11:30; Walter Jones, Amplex, 11:25; Ray Harroun, Marmon, 13:15; Hughes Stone, Columbia, 11:07; Harry Stillman, Oldsmobile, 11:20; Ralph Mulford, Lozier, 10:53; Harry Grant, Alco, 11:10; Ralph Mulford, Lozier, 10:53; Joe Dawson, Jackson, 11:06; Joe Nikrent, Buick, Knox, 12:35; Fred Beardsley, Simplex, 11:36.

The easiest way in the world to get $160, or a part of it, is to guess who is going to win the world's baseball championship and how the winner is going to do the trick.

The BOSTON AMERICAN is awarding $150 in prizes to those who forecast most accurately the outcome of the coming world series between the Cubs and the Athletics.

It costs nothing to guess—scarcely a mental effort. On the other hand, the most successful guessers are those who spend a little energy thinking out their guess.

The two teams will clash on or about October 15 in the first game of the great series. It is going to be the closest and most thrilling race for the world's championship ever fought from the present appearance. The Athletics have already won the American League pennant. The Cubs will soon annex the National League flag.

These two teams will meet in a series of games to decide the world's championship.

How It Will Be Won.

Whichever team first wins four games takes the palm. It is possible, therefore, for the series to consist of from four to seven games.

The dates and places of the games have not yet been determined. If the full seven games are played, three of them will take place in Philadelphia, three in Chicago and the odd one on neutral ground. But it makes no difference where or when the same teams will play.

All the fans are excited over the coming contest. All other baseball arguments are in the ashes.

The BOSTON AMERICAN will give all of the fans a chance to earn some money for their spending. All you have to do is to figure it out for yourself, put the figures on the accompanying blank and send it to the WORLD'S SERIES EDITOR BOSTON AMERICAN, POST OFFICE BOX 270, Boston, Mass. You can guess as often as you please.

Distribution of the Prizes.

For the most accurate guess, a prize of $50 will be given. For the next best guess $25, for the third $15, fourth $10, and then $50 will be distributed for the fifty next best guesses.

It is the easiest way in the world to get something for nothing. Try it yourself. Guess as many times as you please. Remember only this. No guess will be considered which is postmarked after noon of the day the opening game is played, in all cases the guess bearing the earliest date will have preference. These are absolutely the only two conditions.

Conditions of World Series' Contest

ESTIMATE the scores of the games between the Chicago Cubs and the Philadelphia Athletics for the world's baseball championship of 1910.

Send your guess, on accompanying blank to WORLD'S SERIES EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, P. O. BOX 270, BOSTON.

You are guessing for the following prizes.

$50—For the most nearly accurate estimate of the games between the Cubs and Athletics.

$25—For the guess next nearest to accuracy

$15—For the guess third in accuracy.

$10—For the guess fourth in accuracy.

$50—Fifty $1 prizes for the fifty guesses next nearest in accuracy.

The guesses must be postmarked on or before noon of the day of the opening game. In case of ties those postmarked earliest win. THESE ARE THE ONLY CONDITIONS.

BAN PUTS IT UP TO MURPHY

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—When the national commission meets on Monday, the date for opening the world's series will be decided upon," said President Ban Johnson of the American League today.

"I know that Murphy is endeavoring to stab and refuses to take advantage of Stanley Robison's offer to advance the scheduled games of the St. Louis and Chicago teams to permit the opening of the world's series on Saturday, October 15, or earlier. If he doesn't agree to such an arrangement, if the National League schedule is passed to its finish, and then hope to open the world's series on Sunday, October 16, they will be badly mistaken.

"I have been advised by Mr. Herrmann that Stanley Robison has made a proposition to the national commission which will allow the schedule of the National League to be moved up to permit the starting of the world's series earlier than is now possible, if Murphy will agree to it.

OLD PLAYERS BACK.

Although Roxbury Latin will lack beefy players this year, it will have many veterans. The old players back are Captain "Don" Packard, Collins, Littlefield, Sheehan and Austin. Sam Worfolk, a brother of Jack and Perry, both of Harvard fame, will probably join the Latin squad this week.

MATTY FOUGHT BATTLE WITH BROKEN ARM

Matty Baldwin of Charlestown, who fought "Battling" Hurley of New York at the Armory A. A. last night with one arm, went to the hospital this afternoon and an X-Ray photograph disclosed the fact that the large bone of the left arm was broken about three inches above the wrist. The fracture was oblique, but it is like a log, some weeks before Matty can return to the ring.

Because of his game fight with the one arm last night Baldwin is a hero today in Italic circles. He not only stood off "Battling" Hurley for twelve rounds, using only one arm, but the most of the fight fans think he ought to have had the decision. Time and again he handed out right and left uppercuts fast and furious with the one mitt. The other hung limp and useless. He didn't use it even in the clinches. "Battling" Hurley was never dangerous.

"I knew I was going to lose it was broken ago," said Baldwin today. "I felt it crack in the first round, but I figured I might it snapped and then I knew it was done. I suffered a lot, but didn't let anybody know it, because I didn't want Hurley to think he had me. So I just laughed all the time.

He Wouldn't Quit.

Alec McLean Baldwin's manager, when Baldwin quit because of his injury, but the lightweight was game and wouldn't. It he had had the use of his left arm he would have got Hurley out of business in the third or fourth round.

Nine of the twelve rounds were Baldwin's, the other three were Hurley's by a shade, or to even break. It was Baldwin's contest from start to finish if Matty could have used his left hand, the umpire or the referee would be within his rights to make their ally, after the first two rounds. That the nothing but would not have given a draw—in all probability would have got the decision.

As a boxer who can take punishment Hurley showed that he was right there. Matty sent right after right to Hurley's head, but the New York boy did not seem to mind them. It was one of the stiffest bouts imaginable.

Egan Gets the Decision.

In the preliminaries Jimmy Egan won the decision over Young Herman of Roxbury in six rounds. Tommy Flanagan won the award over young Rothwell, the colored amateur lightweight champion, in six rounds, and Dummy West, substituted for Frank Rodman, gave A. J. Duffy, the exam... lightweight champion, a pretty coating for three rounds, Duffy winning on a knockout.

The program for next week was announced as follows: Owen Moran of London and Pal Moore of Philadelphia, twelve rounds; Eddie Hoche of the United States navy and Dick Howell of Canada, six rounds; Pat Rocco and Joan Broderick of Charlestown, six rounds; and Billy Nolan of the United States navy and Joe Geary of Roxbury, six rounds.

STRAIGHT TIPS
FOR SPORT FANS

I'VE GOT NO GROUCH AGAINST Maffit Flaherty, but they've got to give me where he is the real thing as referee. He has given some pretty bad decisions here before, but where he's at fault in calling the bout between Battling Hurley and Matty Baldwin a draw is my goat.

THE CHARLESTOWN BOY EARNED the award. He should have got it. Maffit will have to come to the bat and show me before I can believe that the verdict was a just one. My optics are in fine shape, and I think they followed the milling pretty close last night. Yet I failed to see where my referee keeping his eyes glued to the bouts, and his mind on the work he is supposed to be doing, could have called it an even affair.

THE AL. POTTED THIS FELLOW Battling Hurley, as some fighter he is the calm that he could make to an even break with Baldwin was his ability to use punishment. That's all. Matty repeatedly copped him on the head and jaw, but it did not seem to rattle the New York boy. Matty, however, had the best of every one of the twelve rounds. As he fought with only one hand and beat it over at that what could he not have done if both arms were working in and were free to fly the way, didn't you think that he was a good ring artist for Matty? Let's establish in some way.

PRINCETON FRESHMEN PLAY HERE OCT. 29

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 28.—Princeton freshmen clash with Yale on University Field on November 5, just a week preceding the varsity Yale-Princeton game, and with Harvard at Cambridge on October 29, while the crimson varsity is playing at West Point. Forty candidates were out yesterday for the team. The full schedule follows:

October 8, Lawrenceville at Lawrenceville; 15, Exeter at Exeter; 22, Mercersburg at Mercersburg; 29, Harvard 1914 at Cambridge; November 5, Yale '14 at Princeton.

That so many games are away from home is due to the fact that the Princeton varsity plays all but two games of this schedule at Princeton.

"THE-FRONT-THAT-WON'T-BREAK-DOWN"

Study the above expression carefully. It is the most imitated of any expression ever invented by a tailoring house. We were years in perfecting a system of building coat fronts in such a way that they would always stand up and look like new. After getting our design perfected—without flaws—and receiving the thankful endorsement of thousands and thousands of satisfied wearers of our clothes, we decided to protect the public and ourselves.

So we registered the design of "The-front-that-won't-break-down" at the State House. It is our "trade-mark." No tailor in Massachusetts can use the expression, "The-front-that-won't-break-down." It is your protection against fraud.

Every coat made in our shop is made after this famous design. But no extra charge is made for it, even though it cannot be obtained anywhere else.

Our prices for suit (or overcoat) are $15 to $25, and at these prices we give the equal of any other tailor's $30 to $40 offerings. Some tailors cannot equal our clothes at any price. No tailor can give you "The-front-that-won't-break-down." We carry the biggest line of new woolens in Boston. We have to do so to accommodate our increasing business.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S DOUBLE

The Charm of a Melodious Voice

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

THE American talk is a great nation, and it is to the leading land of the world eventually in the art as well as in finance. But the highest development will not be reached until more attention is paid to the cultivation of the voice. The human voice is a wonderful thing. In the early civilization of Egypt written pleadings were not permitted in the tribunals, lest the cause should be saved by the eloquence of the human voice.

When the verdict was announced the presiding judge [illegible] was the successful man in an unbroken silence with [illegible] of Truth.

It is [illegible] an aggressive voice in man or woman is so [illegible] that it renders its possessor distinguished in the circles where he or she moves.

SOUNDS THAT ARE PAINFUL TO THE EAR

South of the Mason and Dixon line one can hear musical voices here frequently, but in the West and Middle States, they are, as a rule, painful to the ear and irritating to the nerves. I am glad to know that some effort [illegible] to remedy this evil. For evil it is [illegible] indifferent to the placing of the voice [illegible] my wonderful [illegible] with [illegible] a few [illegible] a short period. After this [illegible] more instructive and interesting [illegible] to opportunities to one of sensitive nerves.

The chatter of society women at teas and receptions is about as pleasant to the ear as the sound of a [illegible] or the filing of edged tools.

The voice [illegible] of those seem to produce the voices of most American [illegible] are the chief issues or whose voice seems to be the expression of the entire being. When we think of the wonderful things that are accomplished now in treating the dumb and the deaf to speak, it ought to make us realize what could be done with a little effort to beautify the voices of those possessed of all their faculties.

A SWEET VOICE CAN BE CULTIVATED

There are so many painful sounds in this mechanical and mercantile age which we are forced to hear, why not make a science of cultivating musical voices? A few moments given daily to exercises for that purpose will accomplish wonders in a few months. It is worth the effort.

If you take two or three of the first lessons given singers and practice these twenty minutes a day your speaking voice will improve. Or if you lie on your back without a pillow, breathe deeply and repeat the vowels of the alphabet over and over, with chest tones, a few moments morning and night, your voice will grow sweeter and sweeter.

Before a little girl learns physiology or algebra she should be taught to speak agreeably, since a woman's voice is often the only music in a home

Stimulants Not Needed

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE other day I was a guest at a [illegible] luncheon [illegible] of the six guests four were girls under twenty.

"Would any one like a cocktail?" asked the hostess.

Each had an excuse ready and one was [illegible]

Another had indigestion and she thought a cocktail might cure it.

The third took it because she loves the cherry in it, and the fourth because the other three did.

The two other guests refused. They had work to do and knew that cocktails and work don't go together.

The girl who took the cocktail because she was tired grew very talkative and told something which she said had been confided to her as an absolute secret, but that I knew none of you will repeat it," she said.

Naturally, some one will repeat it, for a secret confided to six women is no longer a secret.

By this time the girl is probably heartily sorry for her betrayal of her friend's confidence.

Silly Conversation

Another one of the girls giggled a great deal and made herself and the rest of the party unpleasantly conspicuous.

Not one of the girls was the modest ladylike girl she had been before she took the cocktail.

Their faces were flushed and their conversation silly.

They are all charming girls, and not one of them needed stimulant to add to her charm in any way.

It is easy to get into the habit of taking a little drink because you are tired or ill or because you don't feel well.

The effect of the stimulant lasts but a short time and after it has worn off you feel worse than ever.

And the worst of it is that the dose gradually grows larger, until some day you awake to the horrid knowledge that you have grown dependent upon it.

If girls only knew the impression they create upon others when they take anything to drink they would never touch liquor in any shape or form.

Bad for the Complexion

Nothing ages one so quickly and nothing is so bad for the complexion as intoxicants. A woman may feel that Paris or Vienna more quickly than men. Their nerves are more delicate, and consequently their constitutions are more easily undermined.

Half the time a girl takes a drink because she is with people who are taking one, and she does not like to refuse.

Remember this, girls, that the man who really loves you, will never urge you to take a drink.

He will have too much regard for you to care to see your pure young lips defiled by liquor.

Don't be afraid of being looked upon as prudish.

There is not one single way in which a drink will benefit you and many in which it will harm you. Be wise and not use it.

Solution of the Servant Problem

THERE is a woman in Somerville who [illegible] with the servant problem, although she claims it is no problem at all, and never has been.

However, she has a system and it has brought such effective results that it should not be kept a secret. She employs one general housemaid and her record is three servants in two years, the two predecessors having stayed with her until Cupid stepped in.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CURED

A Lady Will Send Free to any Sufferer the Secret which Cured Her.

Since a child I was distressed and humiliated by an unwelcome growth of hair on my face and arms. I tried all the depilatories, pastes, liquids, creams and other rub-on preparations and I even boiled only to make it worse. I at last discovered the electric needle without being rid of my boon. I spent a great deal of money on various things, and in an unguarded moment a friend recommended a simple preparation which succeeded "here all else failed.

This simple remedy, a harmless, colorless liquid that your own doctor would endorse, enabled me permanently to find entire relief from all forms of superfluous hair, and forever end my embarrassment. It is simple, safe, sure, and can be used privately at home, without fear of pain or blemish. It makes the use of the needle entirely unnecessary.

I will tell in detail full particulars to enable any other sufferer to achieve the same happy results as I did privately at home. All I ask is a two cent stamp for reply. Address CAROLINE DAGMAR, 219 F Old P. O. St., Providence, R. I.

I give her two weeks' vacation every Summer, and it is coming to her. There is no kind of work that is more tiresome than housework. If you don't believe, try it. I have and I know."

What Is Sauce for the Gander Is Sauce for the Goose

By DOROTHY DIX

IN his auto-nuptial marriage agreement Mr. Robert Chanler made over his entire estate to Madame Caraliart, leaving himself entirely dependent on her bounty. The verdict of the world, given without a dissenting voice, is that the man is insane or he would not do such a thing.

What, surrender the liberty that goes with financial independence! What, have to go like a beggar to someone else and ask for a dollar of your own for spending money, please, and explain what you did with the last dollar, and expect to do with this! What, turn over to another's judgment, another's whim, the money that stands between you and want! No one but a fool, a madman, would do it. There isn't a jury in the world that, on this evidence, wouldn't send a man to a sanitarium for the care of the mentally afflicted.

Women's Fortunes

Not every day women do this thing, and instead of also being sent to the lunatic asylum, where they certainly belong they are patted on the back for it and encouraged in so doing. Indeed, until the last few years, the law did it for a woman, and on her wedding day a bride was stripped of every dollar she had and it was turned over absolutely to her husband to do with as he pleased.

He might be the most incompetent of business men, utterly incapable either of making money or taking care of it; he might be swamped in debt incurred before ever the woman he married laid eyes upon him. It did not matter. All of the wife's possessions became absolutely the husband's to throw away in wild speculations, to waste in dissipation, or to be swallowed up by his hungry creditors, as it happened.

The wife had to stand helplessly by and see herself and her children beggared, and nobody cried out that she was insane or that it was criminal for a man to ask her to submit to it. On the contrary, she was best supposed to illustrate what the wifely spirit should be when she meekly folded her hands and let everything go without a word of protest.

It just takes a hard and bitter fight that is more than generations long for a woman to get any property rights, even yet in some States they are forced, whether they want to or not, to emulate the example of Mr. Chanler. In Louisiana still, for instance, a married woman who owns real estate, no matter whether she inherited it or herself earned the money to buy it, cannot even offer it for rent without taking to the real estate agent her husband's written permission to do so. Nor does she own her own clothes, for being in the eyes of the law herself a chattel, she belongs to her husband along with her stocks and bonds and false hair and petticoats.

Leaving the legal aspect of the question out of the case, however, the mere fact that Mr. Chanler is considered crazy for doing exactly the thing that is thought to be admirable in a woman offers a curious illustration of the popular view of woman's and men's rights.

That a man, even in the delirium of love, should turn over all of his property to the woman he marries, is something so amazing that nobody can understand it. It leaves us gaping, open mouthed with wonder, but ninety per cent. of all the women who have a little fortune of a few thousands, give it to their husbands to invest as they please, or to go into business on, and practically every servant girl, or shop girl who has saved up, by dint of heroic self-denial, a hundred or two dollars, turns it over to the man she marries without a question on her wedding day. They give their all, and a millionaire can do no more.

We think, and with good reason, that a man is a fit candidate for the lunatic when he voluntarily surrenders to another his pocketbook, for it is the hand that holds the purse that rules the hearth. Between the financially independent and the financially dependent is always the difference between master and slave.

This being one of the fixed laws of society, is not the woman who voluntarily turns over her bankbook to her husband just as loony as he would be to do the same thing? Unquestionably. No man, no matter how little sordid he is, ever trusts a woman who has money of her own just as he does the one who hasn't a penny to bless herself with, and who is absolutely bound to put up with his vagaries because he stands to her in the place of Providence. It keep a husband or a wife on his or her good behavior to know that the person of the other part has got the price of a ticket to Reno in his or her clothes, and that he or she doesn't have to stand things if they are made too repressive.

What an idiot, you say, a man must be who deliberately puts himself where he has to go to his wife and ask her for money for his cigars! What a humiliation to him! Is not a woman who gives away her money to her husband so that she has to go and ask him for a new hat in equally as ridiculous and silly a position? Wouldn't it be far more dignified, far more sensible, for her to keep her own property, and be able to buy her own millinery?

The Pocketbook and Love

Everybody agrees that it is foolish for a man to give away his entire fortune to his wife and trust her to be generous with him, but it is a great many people have no idea that it is a sweet and confiding and shows a woman's confidence in her husband for her to hand over all that she has to him. In reality, it is as idiotic in the one case as the other, because the best men are often the worst spenders, and the very traits which make a man most lovable are those which lesst fit him for handling money.

There is also this to be said: that no woman who really loves a man holds him up for his roll and takes it away from him. She would not let him put himself in the false position of being dependent upon her. Nor would any man who truly loved a woman take from her her last dollar. Whatever money she had, be it little or much, he would want settled on her in some safe way, so that he might know that she would be secured against want, no matter what happened to his business enterprises.

There is an old saying that most of us have proven in our own experiences to be sadly true, and that is that if you lend money to your friend you lose friend and money both. This is equally applicable to financial transactions between husband and wife, and when either your husband or your wife takes your pocketbook you are mighty apt to lose your love along with it.

FRECKLES

September Worst Month for This Trouble—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody is freckled after the outdoor life of Summer, but happily there is also a cure for those ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get one ounce of Othine—double strength—from Houghton & Dutton or Filter Jarman Drug Co., and apply a little of it at night, and in the morning you will see that even the worst have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they will stay all Winter and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Money back if it fails.

The American Housewife and the Market

By WINIFRED BLACKER

THE Commissioner of the Bureau of Weights and Measures has published the cutest little book you ever saw.

It's all full of rules for the American housewife. The cute little book tells the American housewife just how to go to market, what to buy, how much to pay and how to tell when the grocer is trying to palm off some withered old imitation on her when she wants fresh squash for dinner. The little book carries within its comfortable pages minute instruction as to the best way to buy sirloin steak and how to make the butcher give you the steak you want and not the cheap one he wants you to pay him a dear price for.

SOMETHING BETTER TO DO.

Good gracious, Mr. Commissioner, whatever are you thinking about, you dear man, you?

Do you suppose the American housewife has nothing better to do than to go to market like the common every-day Dutch woman? And why should she waste her time in a horrid old butcher shop playing the detective, when all she'd gain by it would be a few dollars a month and the knowledge that she was helping to earn her right to live and be cook in chief?

Why, what would the bridge club do while she was at market? And, then, it would break in so on her rolling hour.

What is the rolling hour? Well, you must live in the woods. Didn't you know that every middle-aged woman who wants to get back her figure, and every young woman who is determined to keep hers, has to spend at least a day rolling on the floor?

And, then, there's her complexion and her hair. Is she going to neglect them for the sake of feeding a great big, selfish man and a troop of perfectly piggish children?

Why, what do you think the American housewife is anyway, a galley slave?

There's the telephone on the wall and the cook in the kitchen; what's the use of the two of them if she has got to mess around adding up a lot of silly little accounts every day in the week?

It makes wrinkles to worry—any beauty teacher will tell you that—and if accounts don't mean worry I'd like to know what in the world does.

Isn't husband working at a good, fat salary?

What's the salary for, anyway?

WHAT IF A WOMAN DOES SAVE!

To be sure, if she does save it husband will be pretty apt to spend it buying expensive cigars for himself and things to drink for a whole lot of people.

It's true that the young German in the same office with husband gets just the same salary and that he owns his own house and is buying a couple of lots in the suburbs, so he can have a country place, too; while if husband had to raise a hundred dollars at a minute's notice he'd act like a crazy man.

It's equally true that those queer Dagos in the flat upstairs—the musical ones; the man is an orchestra leader or something—have a bank account that would make husband turn green with envy; but then, what's the use of being Americans if you've got to save and economize and count every penny like a couple of foreigners?

Children to save for? Oh, the very notion! Who wants children nowadays? And the Dutchman can have his country place. The city for ours. The park is good enough for a summer evening once in awhile, but it's pretty lonesome even at that.

Get your little book translated, Mr. Commissioner, or else send it over to England, where the women really take an interest in their own table and in their own homes.

We don't want it here in America, do we, Sister American Housewives?

Daysey Mayme Appleton

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THE first week that Daysey Mayme Appleton was in New York she secured a position as a stenographer with an old-fashioned firm.

"I don't really need the work," she explained, "but I feel that they need me! It would be kindness for me to help them, and what are we here for if not to Do Good?"

She was expected at the office at 9, and the morning of the second day she dressed with a full realization of the needs of the firm for her services.

"They are too commonplace," she said; "too matter of fact. They need more of the Beautiful in life; they need their Souls Stirred."

So, as she put on her hair, she began to memorize Uplift mottoes to cheer the flagging spirits of her employers.

"What you have not done, it is proof that you could not," she memorized with her mouth full of hairpins. "Love's inspiration may be found in a dewdrop," was recited, while she adjusted her straight front, and getting into the pillow quality she called a dress was interrupted many times while she committed to memory the following:

"I have learned that success is to be measured not so much by the position one has reached in life, as by the obstacles one has overcome to getting there." And she thought how true it was, for wasn't her dress a success, and didn't she have to overcome countless obstacles from an old-fashioned father in getting it?

There were others about overcoming the sordidness of life by looking at the moon, etc; all of which she learned, and with stopping between every garment to learn a new motto with which to fortify herself for the day, and to bring the ideal into the life of her employers she was three hours late in reaching the office.

That was the day that Daysey Mayme was fired. "They don't know their need of me," she said, with a sigh of pity for them.

Then she settled down at home to let her father support her, having found a motto that said a man amounted to more in life if he had a woman to care for.

After a married woman has read a woman's magazine faithfully for ten years, she is at last quite something that suits her needs. It isn't found in the "Inspiring Hours of the Day" nor in the column headed "What Life Means to a Woman"—she finds what gratifies her longings is no advertisement of a bunion cure.

Desperate Desmond

A CONTINUED PICTURE DRAMA OF LOVE AND HATE, WITH A THRILL IN ITS EVERY PICTURE

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner

HA HA HA WHEN YOU STRIKE THE BOTTOM, DESMOND WILL BE MINE.
A HORRID RUSE! I WAS TRICKED BY DESMOND'S FAKE BUTTERFLY!
I'LL BE RESCUED NOW.
UNHOOK BOYS, OR WE ALL PERISH!
SORRY OLD PAL, BUT THIS IS DANGEROUS CLIMBING
TELL ROSAMOND I DIED BRAVELY
THIS PROSPECTIN AIN'T GOT ME NOTHIN AS YET, DAH!
FAREWELL, ROSAMOND. THIS IS ARE LAST WORDS
SAVED!
OIL. B'GOSH!
YOUR LOVER CLAUDE IS DEAD!
YOU LIE, DESMOND!

Another of Desperate Desmond's dastardly tricks. He lured Claude on with a phony butterfly and made him jump over the edge of the canyon. And the canyon is nine thousand feet deep, more or less.

Here is Claude's chance to be rescued. If those mountain climbers will only hang on tight when our hero hits the rope, he stands a good chance to reach the bottom in an unbroken condition.

But the mountain climbers are not there with the nerve. They cut the rope loose, and poor persecuted Claude continues on his way. He still has two thousand, nine hundred and fifteen feet to go.

Now, what's up? Do those guys think the canyon isn't deep enough? Are they digging a hole so Claude will have further to fall? No, gentle reader; nothing like that at all. Those gentlemen are merely prospectors.

And, what's more, they are successful prospectors; they have struck oil. And the oil has struck Claude. Isn't it odd that the oil should gush forth just at that particular instant? One second later would have been everlastingly too late.

That oil well is some gusher, is it not? It has boosted Claude clear up to the top of the canyon, just in time to call Desmond a liar. But Claude should be a little careful; that's fighting talk. Full report of the battle in the next pictures.

Seventy Cents a Day

By THOMAS TAPPER

"The Country Towns Will Always Furnish the Material out of Which Many Leaders Will Be Developed.

I.

DID you ever hear of Mary Lyon? She has been dead more than sixty years; but her life was passed in labor of a kind that permits her to live to this paper to-day as forcefully and as vitally as ever.

Mary Lyon is known as the Queen of Teachers. This title was not bestowed upon her in the pomp and circumstance of a coronation, but she won it living and received it after she died. She is a true queen, regnant, nevertheless.

What made Mary Lyon famous?

To begin with, she had not much education. She was twenty-five years old before she could speak grammatically. She wrote no books. She earned little money. The largest salary she ever received, Dr. Winship tells us, was $200 per year, or $5 per week, or a trifle over 70 cents per day.

Mary Lyon established the first endowed and equipped seminary for girls, particularly for poor girls, in the United States.

This is Mount Holyoke Seminary, at South Hadley, Mass.

This was in 1837. Despite her handicaps of fortune and education, she made it possible for girls to get an education at the lowest possible cost, and she raised $60,000 for land, buildings and equipment.

II.

MARY LYON was born in Buckland, a town in Western Massachusetts, February 28, 1797. Her father, a farmer, died when Mary was six years of age, and the care of raising the seven children fell to the mother. All the children helped run the farm. Besides what they raised for sustenance, they had a wonderful flower garden. This means that they loved not only the crops of the earth but its beauty.

Mary went to a district school, a mile from her home. At the age of ten she worked for her board in a family in the adjoining town of Ashfield, and earned her schooling. At sixteen she began teaching school for 75 cents a week and her board. The school term was twenty weeks, hence her salary for the year was $15, but she added to it by spinning and weaving, and at twenty she had saved enough to go to an academy. When her funds gave out she sold all the little property of bedding and table linen she owned in order to study a little longer. Often she slept only four hours and devoted every other moment to study.

Thus she went on teaching and studying until the fact was clear to her that there should be available just as fine educational privileges for girls as for boys. This thought was never absent from her mind, and finally she succeeded in raising —among comparatively poor people—the $60,000 necessary. She demanded that the teachers be first class and work for a small salary. She fixed her own salary at $200. This reduced her maximum wages to less than $4 per week, or about 60 cents per day. Further, she required that the girls must do the housework, so as to limit the year's expenses of each student to $60. Though these conditions were made fun of and held to be impracticable, she succeeded in securing fine teachers. When the doors of the new school were opened more than 300 young women from twenty States applied for admission. The building could accommodate but eighty-five. But Mary Lyon succeeded in housing 125 of them; the others had to return home. In the first twelve years nearly 2,400 young women were educated at the seminary.

III.

MARY LYON'S earnings were small, as we have seen, but her habits were simple. She cared for her resources so well that when the seminary was opened she donated to it $1,200 she had saved. At her death she left a missionary society over $2,000.

Her plan and purpose were simplicity itself.

She recognized a great social need—a "girls' seminary."

Every thought and effort of her life moved in a straight line toward supplying that need.

Out of ridiculously small earnings she saved and gave much to the cause of education.

She honored the country girl, and expressed her belief in these words: "Influence exerted upon country girls will always be felt."

Mary Lyon died in 1849, sixty-one years ago, and she still lives—to the everlasting honor and glory of a country girl's possibilities.

On her monument are these words: "There is nothing in the universe I fear but what I shall not know my duty, or shall fail to do it."

CHAPTER XII.—(Continued)

MRS. BANNAN, who had pushed her chair back and watched the proceedings in silence, now decided that it was safe to interfere.

"Gentlemen," she said, tapping the table with her knife, "this is a respectable house."

"I beg your pardon, Mrs. Bannan," said Tom, humbly.

"Isn't this place getting awful!" commented Miss Dunstan with a shocked face.

Mrs. Bannan ignored her.

"Ain't you going to have dessert?" she said, including the whole company in the question.

"Is it ice cream?" asked Miss Dunstan, with a show of interest.

"The ice cream hasn't came," said Mrs. Bannan, with dignity, "so I'm going to give you blank mange."

"Is that that jelly stuff that shivers like it had a chill?" inquired Weinstein.

"Oh, horrors! And I'm on a diet," said Miss Dunstan.

"I thought this was ice cream night," Phelps looked indignantly at Mrs. Bannan.

Mr. Phelps Grows Angry

"I just told you that my confectionery man disappointed me," she said severely.

"Well, where's my beer, then?" Mr. Phelps poured the water from his glass into his plate.

"It's all out," said Mrs. Bannan, shortly.

"I ordered a case only last week."

"This is a h—l of a place!" Phelps rose in such haste that he knocked his chair over.

"Ain't you going to wait for coffee?" Mrs. Bannan cried, as he slammed out of the room.

"No, I've had all I want," he snarled, as he stamped up the stairs.

"Isn't it awful to have to live with a man like that?" said Mrs. Phelps, preparing to follow her lord and master.

"I'm picked him," said Miss Dunstan.

"At least I picked up SOMEBODY," replied Mrs. Phelps, and made her exit, while Miss Dunstan was thinking of a reply.

"I'll have some coffee, mother," said Weinstein, by way of restoring peace.

"Lucy can only do one thing at a time," said Mrs. Bannan, still ruffled. "She ain't no centipede."

As she spoke, Miss Le Roy re-entered, conveying a tall, white-faced young man in evening dress, a man Weinstein would have described as "looking like ready money."

The stranger looked about him uneasily—his glance first falling upon the girl, and then upon the shabby dining room. He was wondering how such a radiant creature could confront herself with such surroundings.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Lady Calls on Tom

MISS LE ROY led all the way to the little side table and graciously waited for the newcomer to hold her chair for her.

"We sit here, Jimmy," she said.

"Thank you," said Michelson, returning Merkle's stare with good nature and glancing contemptuously at poor Tom, who was regarding him with ill concealed hatred.

Following Michelson's eyes, Amy caught sight of Tom, and, exquisitely free and went to the boy.

"This is Mr. Wilson, Jimmy," she said, leading the reluctant boy toward the little table.

"Glad to know you," said Michelson, indifferently.

"Same here," said Tom, with a scowl.

He turned away as Miss Le Roy resented herself and leaned across the table toward her guest.

"Who's the young man?" asked Michelson.

"Tom Wilson. He's just from the country. Hasn't been here very long."

"Seems to know you pretty well," said Michelson.

"He's an awfully nice boy," Miss Le Roy explained. "So different from the men you meet here. He's the only one that treats me with respect. I let him take me out once in a while. A girl can't walk down Broadway alone these nights. Every one talks to her. Don't you, any attention to the bunch at the table," she added, in a whisper. "They're all rubbernecking their heads off; but don't give them the satisfaction of noticing them." She looked shyly toward the table.

Mrs. Bannan and Miss Dunstan were staring openly. Merkle had satisfied his curiosity, and was again busy with his dinner.

Joe wore a look of contemptuous indifference, and was trying to catch Tom's eye. But the boy looked at his plate.

"Just bring the principal things, Lucy," said Miss Dunstan, as she waved away the soup. "We're in a hurry."

"Who's the soup and fish," said Weinstein, waving his hand and indicating Michelson.

"Go on, ask her," begged Miss Dunstan eagerly. "You're a perfect right to know who she's bringing here."

Mrs. Bannan rose, grandly, and waddled toward the small table.

"Getting waited on all right?" she said to Miss Le Roy.

"Yes, thanks," said the girl, coldly. Then, as Mrs. Bannan remained immovable: "I want you to meet my friend, Mr. Michelson. This is our landlady, Mrs. Bannan."

Michelson rose and bowed stiffly.

"Tried much of a dinner to-night?" said Mrs. Bannan, returning the bow with all the grace she could assume. "Our ice cream was disappointed me, but if I'd known you were coming I'd have had up something special for you."

"I'm enjoying it very much," said Michelson, embarrassed by her alarm.

"You ain't had nothing yet," said Mrs. Bannan.

"No," admitted Michelson, "but Miss Le Roy has recommended your table so highly I'm sure to be pleased."

"Well," beamed the landlady, "if I do say it myself, I give my boarders the very best there is for the price." She still regarded Michelson intently, and he shifted uncomfortably under her glance.

Making Him Feel at Home

"Sit down, Mr. Michelson," said Miss Le Roy. "There's no use of wasting your manners in a boarding house."

"Yes, don't let me keep you from eating," said Mrs. Bannan, as Lucy brought in the dinner. "Do you like your meat rare? Them is awful small portions, Lucy, but"—she spoke reassuringly to Michelson—"if you want another helping you can have it. Meat is terrible high now, too. My butcher's bill is something awful. Maybe you'd like something to drink with your dinner?"

She moved closer to the table, taking the place vacated by Lucy when the array of small dishes on the tray had been transferred to the table.

"What have you got to drink?" asked Miss Le Roy, hopefully.

"I can let you have some here," said Mrs. Bannan. "It belongs to Mr. Phelps, any" Her eyes were big with pathetic innocence.

"You might let your friends help you. We keep it on ice for him; but he won't mind."

"Thank you very much, Mrs. Bannan," said Michelson, resuming his chair. "I'm quite happy with what I have."

"Well, if you want anything, don't be afraid to shout for it," and Mrs. Bannan nodded her head to her place at the head of the long table.

"That's the worst of living in a boarding house," sighed Amy, "you have to be nice to everybody."

"I don't see how you can stand it," said Michelson. He looked hopelessly at the food before him, and laid aside his knife and fork.

"Ain't it awful," said Miss Le Roy, eating rapidly and with evident appreciation. "But what can a girl do on a small salary?" said Michelson, leaning toward her.

"I can't afford to get talked about," said Miss Le Roy, not in the least shocked.

"Nobody would know," he persisted.

"Now, Jimmy, stop," she complained. "I'm not that kind of a girl."

Mrs. Bannan turned to Letts.

"He's a perfect gentleman," she confided, nodding at Michelson.

"I bet he shaves himself," said the barber, after a professional scrutiny of the stranger.

"Some ought to have better sense than to bring him here right under our noses," commented Miss Dunstan. "A girl can't be too careful if she's to keep her reputation."

The mail carrier's whistle sounded in the areaway outside.

Miss Dunstan rose quickly. "Oh, there's the postman," she cried. "I've been expecting a letter."

But Miss Le Roy was nearer the window, and before Miss Dunstan could cross the room she had taken the handful of letters that were thrust through it, and, after selecting one for herself, had laid the rest on the corner of her own table.

"I know who that's from," she said to Michelson, discussed me for reading at the table."

"Can you beat that!" Miss Dunstan pouted as she gathered the letters and brought them to the larger table.

"Any for me?" asked Weinstein.

"Mrs. Bannan's—most of them," said Miss Dunstan, as she distributed the envelopes.

"I don't know how I'm ever going to pay them," the landlady remarked, laying down her spectacles unopened.

"Mr. Wilson," continued Miss Dunstan, tossing one of the letters to Tom—"and Mr. Merkle." Merkle reached forth and took the other with a jerk.

"Put those on my desk," said Mrs. Bannan, shoving her letters over to Mr. Letts. "I can't read without my glasses."

Miss Dunstan looked up from her letter, which she had been reading in a flutter of excitement.

"Do you know where mine is from? Klaw & Erlanger. They're going to try my play in Atlantic City. I've been excited all day."

She threw back her shoulders, faced away from the dining table and emitted a trill that sent Merkle's hands to his ears.

Tom turned impulsively to Miss Bannan. "Is there anybody in the parlor?"

"If I am the mistress to you, Miss Dunstan," said Merkle suddenly, "I wish you wouldn't," he pouted that place to-night. I have the back parlor you know, and I've a lot of work to do."

Miss Dunstan drew herself up with haughty dignity. "I beg your pardon, Mr. Merkle; it isn't my fault if you have the back parlor. The front parlor is for guests, and I have a perfect right to use the parlor if I want to. My music means a great deal to me, and I don't see why you should object to it."

"I don't, object," said Merkle gruffly—"to music."

"You are the rudest man I ever saw," she whimpered.

"Mind you have me classified."

"Do you object to music?" she turned to Weinstein.

"Oh, no bother your head off, sweetheart."

"And Mr. Weinstein ought to know; he's the loudest," said Miss Dunstan, as with another burst of song she tripped up the stairs.

The Woes of a Boarding House.

"Better get your room changed, Merkle," said Weinstein, facing the newspaper man with a sympathetic chuckle.

"It's a shame to have to live that beer garden across the street," growled the other—without having her bang the ivories all night."

"Well," said Weinstein, rising, "me for the white lights. Don't take any more cold, folks, and remember that it's just as pleasant in the Summer, as it is in the city."

He departed solemnly through the basement door.

"A lady in de parlor to see you, Mr. Wilson," Lucy made the announcement from the hall doorway.

"Me?" said Tom. He jumped from his chair and ran upstairs.

He Writes About The Trouble with Flats

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WELL, sed Ma, it is pritty near the first of Octoiber, so I think you & me will go with it. I can stradgize him. But about the flat, Pa sed, I always thought this was a pritty swell littel flat. Until I heard you describe its faults, Pa sed, I never knew how littel I was gitting for one thousand dollars a year rent. Outside of the things you have mensioned, is there anything else the matter with it?

No, sed Ma, the apartment is all right outside of that, except that the windows is shrinking & all the paper is cumming off of the walls in the library. & in the dining room, Ma sed, where that sideboard used to stand before you brook it one day, there is a big lath sticking rite out thru the plaster.

Good heavings, sed Pa, until now I thought I was living like a prince. You are a great describer, sed Pa, you have only talked a few minutes & now I think I am living in a dog house. The only thing I went now is a straw bed & a bone to gnaw, sed Pa. All rite, we will go out & look for a new flat.

After Ma was gone in the bed room, Pa told me never to git a flat sun I grew up & got married. There was never a flat in all this world, Pa told Ma, that a married woman can't pick sum flaws in if she wants to more.

I guess Pa is right.

12 ENTRIES IN FOR BIG AUTO TRUCK RACE

By J. C. KERRISON.

Six more entries were received for the BOSTON AMERICAN Reliability Run yesterday, including four in Class B, which is for cars up to 1½ tons, and two for Class D, which is for three tons and over. Class B, which is the 1½-ton class, seems to be the most popular up-to-date, there being no less than six entries.

The list of entries comprises two from the Butler Motor Company, both of the same make as the Rapid truck that climbed Pike's Peak a year ago, and which made such an excellent showing during the Glidden tour. The Hudson Company has three additional entries from among its long line of customers, those going into the Private Owner's division.

E. R. Blake makes an entry of two one-ton Machinette trucks. He figures on inducing two of his customers to enter trucks that are now in constant operation. The other two entries are the Gramm Motor Car company's three-ton truck, entered by Frederick W. Black, mar, and the Mack Brothers' entry, entered by the Knox Automobile Company of Springfield.

There are now twelve bona fide entries for the run, and every indication that the number will be more than trebled before the day of the contest.

Those who have no trucks to sell, but who are interested in the motor industry are very much alive to the great possibilities of the contest, and have generously offered their assistance and aid in every way possible. A. Lincoln Filene, manager of the Interstate Motor Company, has tendered the use of his interstate torpedo for the use of the referee during the run, and Mr. Scott and Charles S. Renshaw of the Thomas company, has tendered the use of his six-cylinder Thomas, and Mr. Charles Addison Malley of the E. M. F. Company has tendered the use of an E. M. F. car as an official car during the same period.

There are many more firms and individuals to be heard from as regards entries of contestants for the run, but the private owner's classes are not filling up as rapidly as they might, and while a great many owners and users have promised to make entries they are holding off until the last moment. There seems to be no question, however, that the full list of the classes will be filled, and that Boston will see as big and as attractive an endurance contest as has ever been held in this country.

The rules and conditions of this tour are exactly the same as were those of the Reliability run, which proved so successful from every point of view, both for amateur and electric vehicles.

George Miller, who was one of the crew that travelled from New York to Paris in the Thomas car that won that exuberance in another kind of an endurance contest, is the course of which he drove another Thomas car. The car in question is a six cylinder, 60-horse power machine.

Fred Nebrbis alternates at the wheel with Miller. All of the gears except the high speed and reverse have been removed from the transmission. The car was started from Buffalo this morning, expecting to go over a route of 2,500 miles before it returns to that city. Leaving Buffalo, George T. Vernaut and Ray VanBrandt are acting as observers on the trip.

Today the car comes to Boston. From here Miller and Nebrbis will drive through over Jacob's Ladder and the White Mountains to Albany, then follow the New-York-to-Paris route back to Buffalo.

A new kind of an economy contest was started yesterday morning, to be run when a Maxwell runabout and a horse and buggy were driven over the first day's route that has been selected by the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Company to get comparison of the operating cost of the two types of vehicles. The affair has been sanctioned by the contest board of the American Automobile Association, and Chairman Butler of the board has appointed observers for each vehicle.

Yesterday's route was from Broadway and Sixty-first street in Manhattan to Spuyten Duyvil and return to the starting point by way of Riverside drive. Each vehicle making as many trips over the route as could be done under reasonable conditions. The observers will report the cost of fuel carried at the start, and will note expenses of every kind incurred during the contest, such as tolls and ferriages covered. Each vehicle will stop at the end of 24 hours, and will not start again until the next day. A different route will be covered each day. Today's route will be on Staten Island, and will be covered including Long Island City, Jamaica and Flushing.

CHOLERA REFUGEES BEING SENT HERE

NAPLES, Sept. 28.—Private advices assert that emigrants from the cholera-infected districts of Italy are being embarked at Genoa for America, the territorial signing point being concealed.

Boston harbor arriving in Naples on the Canopic, which entered port after the true report of the terrible cholera epidemic became public, were compelled to leave the city under armed guard.

As soon as the liner was warped into her berth soldiers came aboard and conducted all of the cabin passengers across the city to the railroad station, where they were compelled to take the earliest train to the country or to other Italian cities.

Many persons have died in the streets and the police have kept order with great difficulty.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS CLOSING STOCK PRICES STRONG

Closing prices were near the high for the day and the market showed a strong tone, though during most of the afternoon dullness prevailed.

The failure of the bear element to cause any noteworthy reaction even when supporting orders were withdrawn showed the technical strength of the list. Some experienced operators are confirmed in the opinion that between now and election prices will gradually work to higher levels.

Strength of Chesapeake & Ohio during the afternoon was said to be the result of good buying after the morning reaction which was caused by the selling by speculators who thought this stock a valuable point.

Around noon when prices were reacting some buying of Mercantile Marine and Pacific Mail caused these issues to advance. But this is no criterion of any improvement in the financial position of these issues as at this time of the year the shipping trade always develops a feature of the hope that the American merchant marine will get a subsidy.

Opening prices were dull and heavy, with an appearance of quiet liquidation because of the pressure extended against leading stocks in accordance with yesterday's trend.

The market made a fair effort at steadying itself, but was unsuccessful, as if supporting orders had been withdrawn. Although prices seemed up easily, the bear element did not seem anxious to push their apparent advantage and were at all times ready to cover which would help their cause. As the market has been pushed every way during the last week on unconfirmable rumors, seasoned traders will likely not be inveigled into the bull market, however they should remember the old adage, "never sell a dull market."

On the favorable developments was the $1,000,000 Union Pacific bonds offered in London by John Loeb & Co. had been successfully disposed of and subscriptions closed. This is a most encouraging in face of the predictions that the bonds would have to be sacrificed in advance its rate of discount to 3½ or 4 per cent.

The easier tone of the copper metal market had but little effect on the copper shares and the volume of trading was consequently small and range of prices unchanged. The Butte issues did well while the other coppers sold off slightly on realizing sales. Gold left the export special list some selling of Massachusetts Gas issues brought out offerings, but seemed on the whole was bullish.

Beware the Jabberwock, My Son—the Jaws That Bite, the Claws That Catch

Beware the Jujub Bird, and Shun the Frumious Bandersnatch

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

Somebody has waked up our good little friend, the New York World, and scared him half to death by yelling "Boo!" into his ear.

In five columns of space, in ten kinds of type, and with forty-leven fearful kinds of bosh, the good LITTLE World tells us that the great BIG world is coming to an end—if Theodore Roosevelt can have his way.

Roosevelt is at Saratoga just now, attending the Republican State convention, and doing his best to prove that he is a more able and intelligent boss than the other bosses opposing him there.

We see in Mr. Roosevelt at Saratoga a short, thick-set man, fairly good-natured, when you do not interfere with his game, provided with a fine set of well-advertised teeth, full of animal spirits and natural ambition.

But that isn't what the New York World sees. The World, when it looks at Theodore Roosevelt, sees crumbling mountain ranges, spouting volcanoes, devastating torrents, world-destroying monsters.

Here are the things which the World, on its editorial page, says that Roosevelt will do if the people don't look out.

HE WILL BE PRESIDENT IN 1912. We should say that the people would have something to say about that when 1912 comes.

HE WILL "OVERTURN THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES." If that be so, he must be strong, or the constitution must be pretty weak. Our notion is that, if the constitution can be overturned so easily, we ought to find it out now, and not wait any longer.

HE CAN MAKE "A SERVILE AND DEGRADED SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES." That isn't very complimentary to the Supreme Court of the United States. Supreme Court judges can only be removed after impeachment and conviction. So we do not see how Roosevelt could make the Supreme Court servile and degraded, unless they chose to be so.

The World says Roosevelt will REDUCE THE STATES TO THE LEVEL OF SUBJECT PROVINCES, and also that he will give to the people AN ULTIMATE DICTATORSHIP.

Rather weak States and rather a weak people, we should say.

We do not share the World's panting anxiety. We don't see in Roosevelt a George Washington or an Abraham Lincoln—neither do we see Beelzebub, Jr.

We think the constitution of the United States is better and stronger than Mr. Roosevelt—and, notwithstanding that, the constitution might well be improved a little—for instance, along the line of income tax, government ownership, and other things.

We believe that the States are stronger than Roosevelt; that the ninety-odd millions of average Americans are considerably stronger than Roosevelt.

We fear that the New York World, just before it went to bed, read those classical lines beginning:

"Beware the Jabberwock, my son, the jaws that bite, the claws that catch; Beware the Jujub-Bird and Shun the frumious Bandersnatch. He took his vorpal sword in hand, long timed the Manxsome foe he sought. So rested he by the Tum-Tum tree, and stood a while in thought.

"And as in uffish thought he stood, the Jabberwock, with eyes of flame, came whiffling through the tulgy wood, and burbled as it came."

Roosevelt isn't really a Jabberwock, good, nervous Mr. World. Nor is he a Boojum Snark.

He is just a man, full of ambition and spirit, trying to have some fun; very lucky in the past, made a little too self-confident by a success in which he personally played a small part compared with accident.

But he isn't going to tear down the constitution, root up the States, bang the Supreme Court judges over the head with their own law books, topple the Rocky Mountain range into the Pacific Ocean, or make servile slaves of all Americans.

He is going to have all the fun that he can—who can blame him?—and he is going to find out eventually that he isn't the man that he thinks he is.

Why grudge him, meanwhile, his artless happiness?

Inventors' Foundation Fund.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

My conception of the height of affluence would be for well-to-do men and women to loan money (on patent mortgages) to deserving, though financially exhausted and staggering inventors, whenever, after rigid scientific investigation, it shall be conceded they have conceived and perfected an invention of great merit and possibilities, and of which the inventor might otherwise be deprived for lack of funds to start the manufacture and marketing of his creation.

There should be, too, a well-equipped general workshop where deserving men with excellent ideas, could find assistance in perfecting an original invention.

We, none of us, know of any other class of worthy and publicly useful men who stagger through as many infernos silently, uncomplainingly and therefore unnoticed as do the creators of nearly all of our luxuries as well as of our necessities.

The following facts are conspicuous in the lives of all good men and women:

We sympathize too much with the terrible struggles and vicissitudes of Goodyear, Whitney, Howe, Colt and other inventors long buried and ever since honored, as compared with our utter indifference to the inventors alive to-day, struggling patiently and heroically in the age of greed, graft and grab for well-earned recognition, appreciation and assistance.

Quaintly did the AMERICAN editorially phrase, as quoted below:

"The great interest in man's life, making life here worth while, the only thing that could make life anywhere worth while, is invention and discovery. Every single thing that makes us live as we do to-day, except the bodies with which we are born and the earth that holds us—is the creation of man's brain."

The Rockefeller, the Carnegie, the Sage and other philanthropic foundation funds invite the birth of one other foundation fund, to be established by some multi-millionaire, to search out, find and encourage inventors and discoverers (by protected financial assistance) to do their utmost for civilization.

For obvious and preferable reasons, it would be the more natural and praiseworthy—being contemporaneous—for Edison, Westinghouse or some other eminently successful inventor to take the lead in this great class enterprise.

Every inventor would, in advance of accepting assistance, gladly obligate himself to donate a generous percentage of his profits to the advancement of so worthy an undertaking.

In the course of time, the Inventors' Foundation fund would result in the organization of an army of successful inventors to "get together" in the building of a model manufacturing town, owning its own line of mammoth steamships, freighted with new and useful inventions, to all sections of the globe—an ideal, though practicable and profitable "community of interests," each inventor-resident ever striving to conceive, perfect and patent something new, valuable and useful, and for the honors attached thereto.

Even the bootblacks have their organization: Inventors are the only class who have never formed a protective and mutual aid association.

Very sincerely yours,

DOUGLAS DUANE.

Mr. Hearst Interviewed on American Politics

Declares Country Has Outgrown Old Reactionary Republican Sentiment and That the Best Way to Insure Success of Principles Is Through a New Party

(From the New York World of Yesterday.)

Copyright, 1910, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York World.)

(Special Cable Dispatch to The World.)

PARIS, Sept. 26.—William Randolph Hearst gave this interview on the political situation in the United States to-day to the correspondent of the World:

"What do you think of the recent election in Maine?" asked the correspondent.

"The Maine election was a great gain for the Democracy and a great victory for independent voting," said Mr. Hearst. "The Independents had no ticket in Maine this year and a great many Independent Republicans voted for the Democratic ticket.

"My BOSTON AMERICAN, which is an Independent paper, flooded the State of Maine with special editions daily and Sunday, and worked very hard for the Democratic ticket.

"Maine is largely a Republican State. The Democratic party in Maine, strictly speaking, is a minority, so when a Democratic ticket is elected there it is elected by the votes of men who are too intelligent and independent to be bound by party shackles or to vote for a Republican ticket which does not represent their convictions.

"Why, in your opinion, did the independent voters of Maine concentrate upon the Democratic ticket at this election?"

Against Reactionary Forces.

"Because the Democratic ticket there represented admirably the progressive sentiment of the country, while the Republican ticket represented the old reactionary Republican sentiment which the country has outgrown and which the Republican party itself has discarded.

"Thinking men are beginning to vote for principles rather than for party names, and in that thoughtful independence lies the redemption of the Republic.

"Thinking men have come to realize the extent of the corruption that is demoralizing the Government. They have come to recognize the evil alliance that exists between the unscrupulous elements in the business world and the venal element in politics.

"Thinking men realize that this corruption has been fostered by a system of party slavery which drove men to vote for the regular nominees of their party no matter how unworthy those nominees might be.

"The inevitable results of this party slavery were clearly foretold by the greatest of our American statesmen, by Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln. The people, though amply warned, persisted in this evil system with the result that parties were corrupted and public life contaminated.

"The whole system was unpatriotic, unintelligent and essentially un-American. It is a bad man could secure the blind allegiance of all the party voters, wherein lay the advantage of nominating a good man?

Unscrupulous Business Interests.

"In this savage system of party fetish worship certain unscrupulous business interests were the only elements free of such political superstition. They were the only independent forces in the campaign, and so they controlled elections. The people voted blindly, but the unscrupulous business interests kept their eyes wide open and fired on the main chance.

"These business interests threw the weight of their power and wealth in favor of the candidates which they could control, and so public life soon became infested with traitorous representatives of the people who were in reality the agents of corrupt special interests.

"Little by little conscientious men awoke to the disaster and demoralization which these corrupt conditions were causing. And this American system of party slavery was undermining our American system of free government.

"The horrifying revelations in California, in New York, in Illinois, in Mississippi, in Pennsylvania and other States disclosed a depth of political depravity which has been suspected, perhaps, but never fully realized. Strict party government was a proved failure. The government which Abraham Lincoln had described as 'a government of the people, by the people and for the people' had become a government of parties, by bosses and for the trusts.

"But the people are in revolt and the country will be saved."

"Do you think that the Democratic party as a whole will represent the ideas of the progressives better than the Republican party?" asked the correspondent.

"I certainly do not," was the reply. "Both of the old parties are largely ruled by bosses and financed by selfish interests. The revolt against these evil conditions is more general in the Republican party than in the Democratic party, while the corrupt conditions themselves are quite as prevalent in the Democratic party as in the Republican party.

Where Corruption Has Been Found.

"The disclosures which have lately shocked and aroused the nation showed the same appalling corruption in the Republican party in Illinois and in the Democratic party in Mississippi, in the Republican party in Pittsburg, in the labor party in San Francisco and in both the Republican party and the Democratic party in New York. The iniquity in the Republican machine of Philadelphia is matched by the depravity of the Tammany Democratic machine of New York city.

"For every Barnes in the Republican party there is a 'Packy' McCabe in the Democratic party as mercenary and more disreputable. For every Republican Penrose there is a Democratic Murphy. The exposures of the Standard Oil control fell with equal odium upon Democrats and Republicans. Forker, the Republican, was closely offset by Bailey, the Democrat, Sibley by McCarrin.

"Certificates of deposit were distributed to the Democratic and Republican statesmen, and the corruption books of the Standard Oil Company show an absolutely even (if not a clean political) balance. Corruption is not partisan, and the opponents of corruption must be equally non-partisan if they would defeat their enemy.

Mr. Hearst Has a Vision.

"If the bosses and the corrupt special interests should be driven out of the Republican party, they would be repeatedly and promptly organized into the Democratic party. The Democratic leaders would cheerfully welcome them and spread a mantle over them to lighten their fall.

"We can already see Alton B. Parker assiduously collecting straw for that purpose, while Harvey will gently smooths the ground and Murphy spreads the soft mouth of the ex-pectant doughface.

"Will not the progressives necessarily unite in one party or the other?" was asked.

"The progressives have come to constitute about three-fourths of the voting population of the United States," was the reply. "They are determined to have representation, and of course, they will eventually have it, but whether they will secure it through the Democratic party or through the Republican party or through a new party is yet an open question.

"I have fought for progressive principles for twenty years within the Democratic party and for five years outside of it, and I am ready to support progressive principles in the Democratic party or in the Republican party or in a new party.

Says Roosevelt Has Adopted His Policies.

"I ran for Governor of New York State four years ago on a sound and coherent progressive platform. Of course the bosses of the Democratic party joyfully knifed me. The predatory interests, according to Mr. Barnes's figures, contributed $500,000 to oppose me, and President Roosevelt sent Elihu Root, Root brought Griggs, Taft New York to denounce the very pol which Mr. Roosevelt, insurgent, has adopted.

"Thus for many years progress been delayed by the unwillingness of progressives in one party to aid the gressives in another party. But independent voting has grown apace of late, and earnest men are more disposed to cross party lines.

"I still think that the best way to unite all progressive and insure the success of progressive principles is through a new party, in which all old party antagonisms will be lost and forgotten. But until that new party is formed I shall support progressive principles wherever I find them.

"I can truthfully say that nothing is so important to me as the cause for which we fight, and to advance it I am willing to lay aside all party prejudices and personal and moralities. I am ready to oppose any man who opposed progressive principles and to support any man who sincerely supports progressive principles.

"Do you mean, Mr. Hearst, that you would support Mr. Roosevelt upon a progressive platform?"

"Certainly I would support Mr. Roosevelt upon a properly progressive platform, but, frankly, I would much prefer to support some other man in whose sincerity I have more confidence.

"I approve of Mr. Taft's methods much more than I approve Mr. Roosevelt's. Mr. Roosevelt's methods constitute a policy of windy defiance; Mr. Taft's a policy of quiet and effective performance.

"The big thieves are in much more danger from Mr. Taft than they are from Mr. Roosevelt, while legitimate business is much safer in Mr. Taft's hands than in Mr. Roosevelt's.

"Mr. Roosevelt's reckless threats alarm all business interests, Mr. Taft's dignified acts convince the guilty and leave the innocent undisturbed.

"I think that Mr. Taft would have carried sound, progressive principles through to actual achievements without disturbing legitimate business or disrupting the party if Mr. Roosevelt had not injected his personal ambition into the situation.

"Look at Mr. Taft's indictment and conviction of those great criminal trusts, the Beef Trust and the Tobacco Trust, that are monopolizing the necessities of life and cruelly increasing the cost of living.

"Look at Mr. Taft's calm but firm handling of the railway rate situation. See how Mr. Taft was able to aid in the restoration of prosperity, to strengthen the financial situation and still maintain the necessary prosecution of the actual financial criminals. Mr. Taft deserves the generous and support of all honest and intelligent men, no matter to what party or class they belong.

"It is an unfortunate phase of American politics that by fighting reckless graft or Democratic scheming fraud is often applauded by the people, while quiet merit goes unrecognized.

Mr. Hearst Finds No Hope in the Democratic Party.

"Do you think that you will find the kind of progressive candidates that you prefer to Mr. Roosevelt in the Democratic party?"

"I do not think so," said Mr. Hearst, "the Democracy of New York state is reactionary, and I left it for that reason. It is under the control of Murphy, Sheehan, Cabes, the Sheehans, the Hills, the men whom the New York World and the World as the 'Old Guard' which it served for a decade always opposed.

"This 'Old Guard' always surrendered to the reactionary element that has been maintained in control of the New York Democracy in order that for the single purpose of providing a refuge for the criminal traitors in the Democratic party when the Republican party should at length be driven by moral awakening.

"That day I believe is at hand. The Republican party will no longer vote for reactionaries. The Republican leader after the session of Maine will no longer dare to nominate tools of the privilege interests.

"The criminal trusts will then move on the Republican apartment into the one little Democratic flat, which they have long since maintained for that very purpose. There the criminal trusts will install their liveried lackeys, Hill and Sheehan humbly holding open the door. There the trusts will send their hired attendants, Parker and Herrick, respectively, to wait on the table with their table and satisfy their every appetite. There they will feed and feed and feed, Murphy and McCabe, servilely scouring the scullery. There they will be compelled to put a candidate of easy virtues who will prove complaisant to their every belittled whim.

"So, we will not find an honest progressive candidate in the Democratic party this year. Either the reactionary progressives or the criminal trusts and their political servitors will have to be cast out of the Democratic party.

"There is not room in the Democratic party for honest insurgents and for the swindling traction magnates who control Boston, for the indicted Beef Trust and the corrupt Sugar Trust. Let Mr. Taft's acts and Mr. Roosevelt's words have driven out of the Republican party.

"If the vacated Republican quarters have been sufficiently disinfected then we independent insurgents will go over to it and will pursue our search for a new and clean and permanent dwelling."

Position of the Independence League.

"You cannot, then, Mr. Hearst, definitely declare what you and the Independence League will do this year?"

"I can definitely declare what we will do, namely, until after the convention I can I definitely state what we will do. I shall try to do the thing which will secure the most progress. The Independence League has not won many offices, but every one of them has been an advance on principles more generally accepted.

"I shall also consult with my friend and try to do what they want done. The Independence League has been remarkably kind and loyal to me and I feel a deep sense of gratitude and obligation to them. My personal preference is always for a straight Independence League ticket, but I have sacrificed my preferences whenever a straight ticket would more have diminished the forces of the progressives. Last year a straight ticket would have gotten one more vote, but it might have allowed the Democratic ticket to win and that infamous Cannon candidate to be elected.

Won't Run for Governor, But Will Work.

"Will you yourself be a candidate for Governor?"

"I certainly will not be a candidate for Governor and as have said before and as my friend and man my friend who suggests that I become a candidate for Governor I cannot have it said that my continued activity in politics is merely for my personal advancement.

"I will not run for Governor myself, but I will do more to promote my unselfish devotion to the cause of the independents shall sustain sound progressive for Governor, will accept a nomination for some minor office on the ticket and if my best to elect the head of the ticket and to bring our the independent vote."
